'Emergency' forces city lay-off

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Mayor James Stewart threatened to call a "state of emergency" in the city if Council members didn't raise the water rates to at least $5.50 per 1,000 cubic feet at last night's meeting.

Threatened by the double-barrelled problem of a burgeoning financial crisis in the water and sewer department and a possible lawsuit from the City of Detroit, the outspoken mayor said he had no other alternative.

"Some of the council members are making a mockery of the water issue," Stewart said. "Some are just using it as a political football, hoping to capitalize on it to pick up a few votes in the coming election."

He stressed that not everyone on the city council felt that way, but enough, he said, to keep the water issue stagnant.

"We've given them all the information they need to make an intelligent decision. In fact, we've given them much more information than they really need but they still won't act on it. The majority of the Council comes to three council meetings a month, and think they know the answers. They won't take the time to come into city hall and try to understand what's really going on."

The controversy rages on between administration and council, the former stressing the need for adequate funding to finance the water and sewer department while the latter says, that department is "overstaffed," and wants Stewart to make some financial cuts.

Stewart did just that Friday when he laid-off 21 Department of Public Works employees — 13 ceta workers and eight regulars. Compounding the difficulty, Romulus has just received a letter from the City of Detroit stating it is three months past due in its water payments and owes Detroit $120,000 in bills, plus $5,000 in delinquent fees.

"If no action is taken Tuesday night, I definitely plan to declare a state of emergency, call a public meeting and inform the people of just what's going on," Stewart said Monday. "I may not have any choice but to shut down the water and sewer department entirely. We inherited this problem from the previous administration, we didn't create it — and it's getting worse, not better."

Stewart said his laying-off of 21 employees was in compliance with the wishes of a "Majority" of the City Council. "They asked me to show 'good faith' by making cuts and I complied with their request. I didn't want to lay off these people — but I think Council is playing 'politics' with people's jobs."

Stewart believes some members on the council are trying to make him "look bad" before the coming election. "They're trying to put a monkey on my back, but they're the ones who are going to come out of this with egg on their face," he says confidently.

Referring to Detroit's threat to shut the city's water off, or even take us to court, the mayor alluded to section 12 of the agreement between the two municipalities.

"Section 12 plainly says if we're more than three months behind in our payments, they can shut our water off. In 10 days, they'll be billing for January, which will make Romulus four month's delinquent in its water payments," he said.

The first-term mayor admitted that it was "doubtful" that the five affirmative votes would be forthcoming Tuesday night to raise the water rates to $5.50 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Councilwoman Beverly McAnally has declared she will not vote for any increase until an in-depth study is made. Fellow council member William Oakley says he will vote for some kind of increase while waiting for the in-depth study to be completed.

After Stewart put the 21 DPW workers on the unemployment list Friday, several council members phoned his office to discuss the matter with him. The mayor wouldn't comment on which council members he felt might support an increase to the $5.50 figure, but said he hoped common sense would prevail.

Adding intrigue to the whole situation is the fact that Mrs. McAnally and Oakley are strongly rumored to be candidates for the mayor's office in next fall's election.

Meanwhile, the impasse between the mayor and council continues to swamp Romulus in a flood of troubles. Charges and counter-charges fly back and forth and the public follows the comments, sifting the statements, trying to discover where the truth is.

The 13 CETA employees are paid entirely with federal funds, both their employment and their unemployment compensation. However, the eight regular city DPW laborers, who were given "pink slips" Friday, will receive unemployment compensation from the city, thus increasing the city's overall loss of revenue without the benefit of work being done on the broken water mains which plague the city and are leaving many homes without water.

Foremen sign their first work contract

Department of Public Works' foremen Roscoe Smith, Al Britz and Sherman Youtsey have signed a three-year contract with the city of Romulus, marking the first time they have been represented by a union.

The new contract, negotiated over an eight-month period, was worked out by representatives of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, (AFSCME), local 23, and the city.

Negotiating for the foremen were Smith and Leon Carroll, AFSCME officials, while City Attorney Peter O'Rourke and Councilman Robert Martin represented the city.

Prior to the contract, the foremen were salaried employees, receiving the same benefits as other city workers. According to the arrangement, it meant they received less at times than the workers they supervised. They also received no overtime pay despite the fact they worked more than 50 hours per week during the month of January.

The new contract, according to Mayor James Stewart, gives the foremen a substantial wage increase, including overtime compensation for any time over 44 hours a week. The foremen are paid hourly under the union contract.

The three DPW foremen supervise approximately 30 employees, involved mainly with clearing of roads, grounds maintenance of municipal properties — including parks and cemeteries — and water and sewer line maintenance.

Speaking for his fellow foremen, Smith said, "We are very pleased with the contract we received. The negotiations were fair and we had very satisfactory dealings with Mr. Martin and Mrs. O'Rourke."

Stewart said he was happy with the settlement, adding, "I was well-pleased with the negotiations and I feel the end result will be beneficial to both city and foremen alike."

Three Romulus Department of Public Works' foremen will be represented by a union after inking a three-year contract with the City of Romulus. Covered by the pact are Roscoe Smith, Al Britz and Sherman

Cops look at capital punishment

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor and MAUREEN RADEMACHER
ANP Staff Writer

Crime has been with us since the apple was stolen from the forbidden tree in Paradise, and since Cain took his brother Abel's life.

And it has fallen on a rare breed of person — the police officer — to constantly bear witness to the brutality man inflicts upon his fellow man.

What do those officers, who daily see what man can do to others, think of the re-instatement of capital punishment?

Of those surveyed this week, the majority favored the return of the death penalty for the most brutal of man's crimes against himself.

An 8-year veteran of the Westland Police Department, Ptrl. Frank Visconi, currently working in the city's Youth Energy Services Program, favors capital punishment, but feels more rigid jail sentences should also be a part of its re-instatement.

"The courts should make the penalties stiffer, and they should follow through with them," he said. "Prisons shouldn't be nice places. We make them so nice, they (the criminals) want to go back," Visconi supports the use of capital punishment for first degree murder, crimes against children and rape, as well as for the killing of a police officer.

Ptrl. Louis Wojcik, a Westland Police officer of 9-years, who also spent four years with the military police, supports the re-instatement of the death penalty for "out and out killings."

He went on to say that a convicted murderer "deserves death quickly," calling an extended stay on death row "cruel and inhumane."

"I've looked at too many people whose rights have been violated by the criminal," Wojcik continued.

"But it should be limited to the ultimate crime. Let society decide if the ultimate punishment should be levied."

Crimes Wojcik feels should call for capital punishment include murder and violent acts against children and women.

Sgt. Robin Crosby, who has been in police work more than 10 years, favored the re-instatement of capital punishment, but for crimes against specific persons — children.

"I have mixed feelings about," he said. "I think it should be applied for sex crimes against children." He added that his feelings about the death penalty and other such crimes is due, "Probably because of my own children."

Crosby went on to say that for all other crimes, "if a life sentence is set, then it should be a life sentence."

"There's too much room for mistake," he concluded. "Capital punishment is final."

Insp. Paul Schnarr, who has logged 18 years as a police officer in Oak Park and the City of Westland, favors the death penalty, saying: "If the criminal extracts the supreme penalty (death to the victim), then he should receive the supreme punishment. If he takes a life, then he should give his own life in return."

He went on to say that a criminal "that kills someone, doesn't deserve to be treated humanely," adding: "What makes it right for somebody to take a life, when he knows he won't have to give one?"

Schnarr doesn't believe that capital punishment will serve as a crime deterrent since "The real criminal still will continue, however, the guy that did (kill) and did get the death penalty, isn't going to do it again."

Taking a stand against capital punishment was Cpl. Michael Frayer, who believes "the state does not have the right to take a life."

"The laws and penalties presently on the books, if adhered to, are more than enough," the 9-year police veteran said. "That means a sentence of life imprisonment should be life in prison in solitary confinement at hard labor."

Frayer, who feels capital punishment would not serve as a crime deterrent, added that in the case of executed murderer Gary Gilmore, the state "was a party to suicide."

Another Westland officer favored the re-instatement of capital punishment for "the heavy five" — the crimes of kidnap, rape, armed robbery involving murder, murder and arson.

The officer, who wished to remain anonymous, went on to say that "there are too many repeaters."

"You see the same faces for the same felonies too often," the 7-year police veteran said. "And all they get is a slap on the behind. 'We don't have that much contact with repeaters on this department,' he added, saying that capital punishment "really would not be needed, if those sentences (set by law) were imposed by the courts."

The consensus of the six police officers interviewed at the Wayne Police Department favored the re-instatement of capital punishment, citing the certainty of punishment as a possible deterrent.

"The present system we're using in dealing with first-degree murder, where the criminal spends time in prison, isn't getting results in stopping murder," said Det. Lt. Dean Smith, 21-year veteran and head of Wayne's detective bureau. "We need some change, and it appears that this would be the way to go."

"There is the possibility that this would reduce the number of murders in the state. Who really knows if it's a deterrent or not? But it would be a good idea if it could reduce the number of murders."

Acknowledging that some experts believe it does not deter crime, all the officers felt that it may make criminals "think twice" before committing such crimes as armed robbery.

Some hold-up murders are committed because the perpetrator doesn't want to leave a witness," said Cpl. Bill Davidson, 12-year veteran of the Wayne force. "Capital punishment may deter killing in such cases."

Davidson said he favors re-instatement of capital punishment to "deter needless killing" in cases of pre-meditated murder.

Regarding the moral question of taking a life, Davidson added: "This person doesn't deserve to be treated as a moral person. I don't think society is unjust for doing the same thing to him that he did to another. He should know, before he commits the crime, that he is subject to this type of punishment."

Ptrl. John Colligan, an officer for 5½ years, agreed that "certainty of punishment" is a point in favor of capital punishment.

"We live in a society and set our own rules and norms for that society," he said. "We appreciate the benefits of society, and if a person breaks the laws of society, he should expect some type of punishment."

"He's made his own decision (when he commits murder), and understands what the rules are. The punishment should fit the crime."

The officers generally felt that the pre-meditated murder would be the crime that warrants death. As a rule, they did not favor death in cases of rape or kidnapping, or other crimes where no human life was taken.

Det. Fred Stafford, an 11-year veteran of the department, added that in some cases attempted murder might warrant the death penalty. He said the decision on whether to sentence a convicted killer to death should be up to the jury, not the judge, in a trial.

Admitting that he would not want to be the one "to pull the switch" in executions, he noted that just as in war, where soldiers shoot the enemy

"for an honorable purpose", capital punishment would likewise be done for the common good and defense of the general citizenry.

He added that it is difficult to say whether or not death penalties are a deterrent, because there really hasn't been a uniform application of the death penalty for many years. "If applied correctly, I would think it has to have some deterrent affect."

Many of the officers mentioned particularly vicious murder cases, such as John Norman Collins' conviction for the brutal killings of a number of young women in Ann Arbor several years ago, as deserving of such a penalty.

The moral aspect of giving the state the right to take human life was addressed by Ptrl. Kenneth Kissel, 8-year veteran, who said he sees no moral conflict in such punishment.

"I don't agree with the 'eye for an eye' idea, if I did, I wouldn't have made it through the first year as a police officer," he said. "But the Bible does say we have to be subject to the government, and obey its laws. We are to obey the laws of the land, and if we don't we will perish by the sword."

Concerning the deterrent aspect of the death penalty, he added: "I try to think of what I would do, and I know I'd think twice."

Lt. Stanley Sak, an officer in the Wayne Department for 24 years, acknowledged that there "is no way of getting a loved one back" through killing the murderer, but added: "Why should this person be put back on the street and possibly give the same hardship to another person?"

"It's true that two wrongs don't make a right, but I don't consider this (death penalty for murderers) wrong. Could you say that taking his life for his crime is wrong? I don't consider it killing."

He added that many prisoners are paroled for being an "ideal prisoner," but that doesn't mean that prisoner has been rehabilitated.

Of consumers' rights

Council issues declaration

The Michigan Consumers Council has presented its "Consumer Declaration of Rights and Responsibilities" to Gov. William Milliken and the chairmen of the State House of Senate Consumer committees. "The declaration sets forth basic principles which we feel should exist in the marketplace," said Agnes Brynt, chairman of the council. "We believe they are necessary for a fair market-place which is the common goal of both honest business and responsible consumers.

"Many of these principles already are included in the law, while others should stimulate thought and discussion and perhaps change."

The declaration represents more than a year of thorough and intense discussion as the council and its staff struggled to concretely determine what are the basic consumer rights and responsibilities, she added.

Linda Joy, the council's executive director, said: "It is important to understand that the declaration does not have the force of law, nor is it proposed legislation. Rather, it lists the basic principles the council has identified as essential if fairness in the marketplace is to be preserved where it now exists—and extend to those instances where it does not now exist."

"While undoubtedly not all consumer advocates nor everyone in business will agree with every point, this document stands as a comprehensive guide for speaking on behalf of consumers," she added.

The document identifies consumer rights under four subheadings—the Right to Be Informed, the Right to Fair Treatment, the Right to Get your Money's Worth and the Right to Government Protection. It also includes a section outlining consumer responsibilities.

Each point in the declaration has been carefully worded to convey, as precisely as possible, what the Michigan Consumers Council believes to be basic rights and responsibilities, Miss Joy added.

'We, the members...'

We, the members of the Michigan Consumers Council, believe there are certain inalienable rights of consumers in the marketplace. We recognize consumers also have certain responsibilities. The following declaration sets forth basic principles we have identified to help ensure equity and harmony in the marketplace.

THE RIGHT TO BE INFORMED

—If it is a business's formal policy to deny refunds or to assess additional charges, a consumer should be alerted before the transaction take place...

—A product or its packaging should not mislead.

—A drug or processed food should be labeled to indicate the percentage of each ingredient.

—Any advertisement about products and services should provide only accurate, testable and non-misleading information.

—Restrictions should not be placed on a seller's right to advertise.

—At the time of a transaction, a consumer should be provided with an itemized statement of all related charges and representations.

—All interest charges on transactions should be computed by the same method.

—A consumer should have access to information maintained by the government.

—A manufacturer should alert consumers to any significant changes in a product's make-up, operation, use or care instructions.

—A manufacturer should advertise any serious safety risks associated with a product where a failure to advertise would pose a serious threat.

—A seller should provide the manufacturer's name of a new product upon request.

THE RIGHT TO FAIR TREATMENT

—A consumer should be informed of and given the opportunity to challenge any information collected about the consumer before it is disseminated to a third party for a fee.

—A consumer should not be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, marital status, physical handicap, sex, residence, age, vocation or sexual preference, unless there is a proven economic basis.

—A consumer should be entitled to a refund from the seller if a product is not fit for the purpose for which it is designed or advertised.

—A consumer suing for a refund should receive reasonable attorneys' fees, if the refund is awarded.

THE RIGHT TO GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

—A product should be fit for the purpose for which it is designed or advertised.

—A warranty should state the identity of the party responsible for honoring it.

—An advertised warranty should be available to a consumer prior to sale and should clearly state all conditions under which the warranty will be honored, including obligations of both the consumer and the party responsible for honoring it.

THE RIGHT TO GOVERNMENT PROTECTION

—A consumer should not be prohibited from knowingly and voluntarily waiving any rights in a consumer transaction.

—A consumer's possessions should not be repossessed, taken, attached or otherwise seized without providing for due process.

—The government should prohibit barriers which limit entry into occupations unless the occupation seriously affects consumers' health and safety.

—The government should protect consumers against unfair monopolistic practices.

—The government should regulate oil, natural or synthetic gas, water, electric, coal and nuclear industries to the extent necessary to assure present and future availability to consumers and to protect their health and safety.

—A consumer who wins a lawsuit for damages caused by a violation of a statute should recover reasonable attorneys' fees.

THE RESPONSIBILITY TO:

—Sign only documents which are understood.

—Be able to provide documentation of any consumer transaction.

—Read and follow directions in the use and maintenance of a product.

—Promptly notify the seller of any dissatisfaction arising out of a transaction.

—Notify an appropriate government agency of any legal violation arising out of a transaction.

—Avoid excessive debt.

—Pay for contracted goods and services which are consistent with this declaration.

St. Anthony's Pack recognizes Scouts

St. Anthony's Cub Scout Pack 793 handed out a large number of awards at its recent meeting.

A Bobcat badge was given to Doug Stamper, a Wolf badge to J.R. Gramlich, Wolf badge and two silver arrows to Bruce Domen and Bear badge to Richie Nota. Karl Duda was advanced to the Webelo Den.

Trophies were presented to the pack's Pinewood Derby winners.

Hallstrom; winner, Den 3, Lance Daroci; winner, Den 4, Michael Jaszcz and winner, Webelos, Gary Bergeson, who also was the overall winner.

Alton Bergeson was introduced as the new Webelo den leader, replacing Bob Monforton, who will be moving, with his family, to Ohio. "Pack 793 wants to say 'thank you' to Mr. Monforton and his wife, Joan, for all their work in our Scouting program," said Bergeson.

Bills pile up

'Politics' plagues Water Dept.

Michael Herman, director of water and sewer billing for the City of Romulus, must feel like the odds are stacked against him.

Not only has the youthful department head not been able to pay Detroit for the city's last three months' water bills, he's facing the coldest winter in nearly a century. It seems he's getting it from the inside as well as outside.

The Romulus City Council has refused to raise the water rates to what the latest auditing firm suggested, thus leaving Herman's department in a state of being "flat broke". And while the young man leaves "Politics" to others in City Hall, he "quietly agrees that the Water and Sewer Department is going farther into the hole financially every day."

But Herman just flashes his friendly smile and continues to do the best job he can, a job that is getting harder and harder by the day.

The citizens' referendum that prompted City Council to rescind its recent 39 percent increase in water rates has only added to the financial crunch felt by the Water and Sewer Department.

Due to the cancellation of the 39 percent increase, Mayor James Stewart has laid off 21 Department of Public Works (DPW) employees — 13 CETA people and eight regular workers.

"This latest move has caused us to switch two of our meter readers to helping the depleted DPW crews fix broken water mains," Herman said. "That leaves us only one man to read meters and one service man."

As a result of being short-handed,

Herman said the one man reading meters will only be able to read outdoor meters. He's requesting residents who have inside meters to read their own meter and report the reading to the Water and Sewer Department at 941-0666, ext. 37, 38, 39 and 74.

Herman said the streets effected basically are south of I-94.

"During December Romulus had 32 water main breaks and at least 20 more during January, with breaks being reported on an average of almost one a day," he added. "The city's water bill from Detroit was $30,000 more in December than it was in November, mainly due to broken water lines."

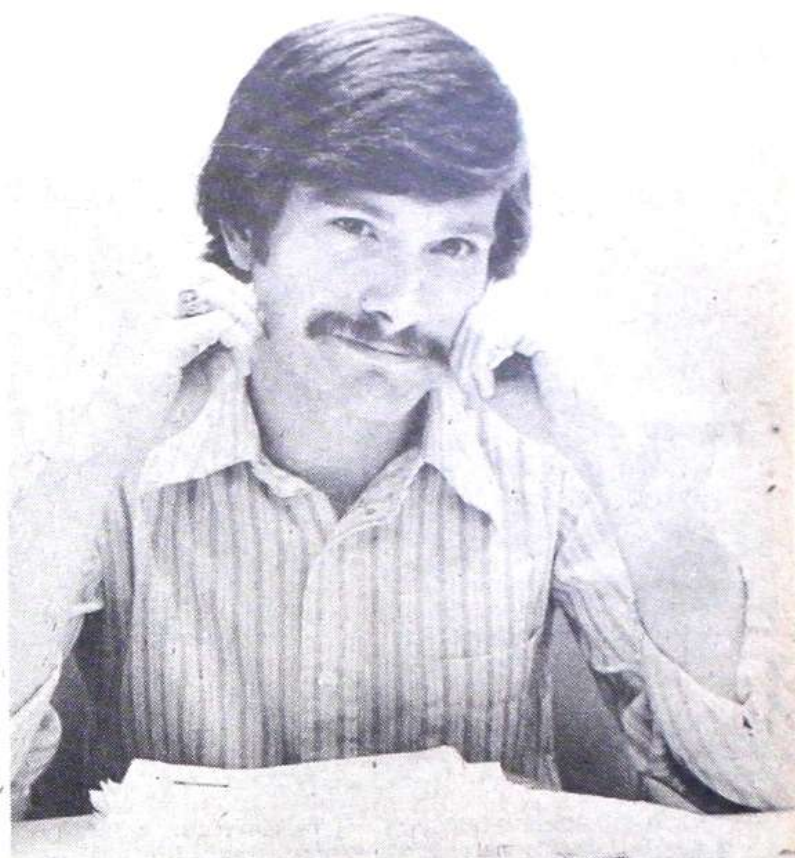

Even now, there are homes in Romulus without water due to broken water lines, and very few workers to fix them.

The Water and Sewer Department received a letter last week from the City of Detroit, saying it was three months late in its water payments, totaling $120,000 in bills and $5,000 delinquent charges.

That's not the only problem Herman faces. He's been left holding a stack of unpaid bills, totaling some $466,000 to all creditors of the Water and Sewer Department. And these people want their money.

But the Water and Sewer Department insists it doesn't have any money to pay the nearly half million dollars in debts, and the law forbids paying them out of the city's general fund.

Bills, bills...

And you think you have bills? Consider Michael Herman, director of water and sewer billing for the City of Romulus. The young department head faces a stack of bills totaling $466,000 (yes, that's almost half a million dollars) and doesn't know where the money is coming from to pay the debts.—ANP photo.

When it rains

When it rains it pours. And sometimes in the midst of the coldest winter, pipes freeze and leak water. That's what happened recently at the 34th District Court on Eureka Road in Romulus. A 10-foot-square section of ceiling came splattering to the floor when water pipes in the ceiling

Dog show to benefit RHS sports program

In another attempt to add some cash to Romulus Senior High School's sports fund, the Student Council is sponsoring a dog show at 5 p.m. Feb. 18.

"We're proud of our wrestling and basketball teams, as well as our coming spring athletic teams and we want to see them be able to enjoy athletic competition," said Jo Ann Miller, chairman of the dog show program.

Those planning on entering their dogs should sign up at the school auditorium between 3 and 4:30 p.m. on the day of the show.

Cost for entering a dog will be $1 per single event and $5, if the pooch is entered in all five categories. Judging will be in the categories of size, grooming and appearance, obedience, tricks, and all-around.

First prize for the "all-around" winner will be a doghouse built by the students in the building trades class at Romulus High. First, second and third prizes will be given out in each category.

Second and third prize in best "all-around" will be trophies and ribbons.

Romulus creates new voter precinct

The City of Romulus will have one new precinct and several changed locations for others when local residents to the polls to vote in the special millage election on March 19.

"It will be our first Saturday election and should provide more citizens with a chance to vote," said City Clerk Leonard Folmar. "Many people will be off from work and will be able to go anytime during the day."

Precinct 1 has been split to establish Precinct 18, which will vote at City Hall. In other moves Pigg and Nancy Flannery.

Romulus High School students, coaches, teachers and parents have been active in fund-raising activities this winter sports season because all funds were cut off from high school athletics by the school board.

approved by City Council, Precincts 1 and 14 will now be located at Wick Elementary School, while 10 and 17 will remain at Cory Elementary School.

The newly-created precinct — 18 — is located in the old downtown area of Romulus. It is bounded, roughly, by the C & O Railroad on the east, between Ecorse and Chase, with Hannan Road the far west boundary.

"We're required by law to notify everyone affected by this change and they'll be receiving cards in the mail to that effect," Folmar said.

Ceiling collapses at District Court

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

The doddering, delapidated 34th District Court on Eureka Road in Romulus suffered yet another indignity in its old age. Now in its 75th year, the ancient white frame former schoolhouse with the peeling paint on the outside, had its furnace go out on the weekend of Jan. 29-30.

There was no heat in the building on Monday and Tuesday of last week, so no cases could be held by Judge James B. Stone. While the heat was off, the water pipes froze and an air-conditioning unit leaked water on the drywall ceiling.

Someone noticed that the ceiling was sagging on Tuesday. On Wednesday when employees came to work, a 10-by-10-foot section of ceiling had fallen to the floor, leaving a large, black hole in the white ceiling.

Five Romulus Department of Public Works employees were called in last Wednesday and had the damage repaired in about five hours, and Judge Stone held court in Judge Henry Zaborowski's courtroom while the latter was conducting 29th District Court cases in Wayne for Judge John C. Seiler.

'The DPS workers did a fantastic job...'

"The DPW workers did a fantastic job," said Court Clerk Charles Walls. "The cost in materials I understand, was very nominal and they had it fixed in a very short time."

The inside was completely remodeled on July 7, 1969, but the ancient building is "on its last legs," according to Walls.

Romulus has received a federal grant of $931,000 to build a new 34th District Courthouse on four acres of ground next to City Hall at the Civic Center. Work on the new court is expected to start in the early spring.

Walls, who has served the 34th District Court for a long time, smiles at the thought of a nice, new building.

"No one could be happier than we are," he said, referring to the workers who have suffered through many problems of the court's "old age."

A week earlier, on Jan. 28, DPW workers experienced the same feeling of seeing their building damaged — not by leaking pipes, but by 50 mile-per-hour winds. Strong winds, coming from the west, entered the doors of the DPW building at 34100 Goddard Road and battered the north wall of the structure.

Although no one was hurt and only minor damage was done, it still will cost close to $5,000 to repair the cinder block wall that was shaken loose at the top, DPW officials estimate.

The north wall of the 8-year-old building is in a storage area but no equipment was damaged. Insurance will cover the cost of repairing the building, except for the initial $500.

BOCA fire code nets City Council approval

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide is extremely pleased with City Council's adoption of Building Officials and Code Administrators (BOCA) fire prevention code.

A nationally-respected and high-caliber fire prevention code, BOCA covers not only residential homes and businesses but every phase of fire protection.

"I think it's a real good code, but we'll have to study it thoroughly to see if there's any area the council will have to make it more stringent," Wilhide said.

The fire ordinance covers all the roads in Romulus, empowering the city to designate fire lanes on every street, including those on private property.

Wilhide said the fire lanes will be designated according to the width of each street. Streets not exceeding 22 feet in width will have no parking on them. Streets not exceeding 32 feet will have no parking on the fire hydrant side of the street.

Wilhide added: "Any street over 32 feet wide will have parking on both sides of the street unless it creates a hazard and then that will have to be checked into."

"This ordinance empowers the city to designate fire lanes on private property, such as apartment complexes, auditoriums, churches, hospitals, convalescent homes, shopping centers and all other areas, the veteran Fire Chief explained. "The fire prevention code book is about an inch thick and will take time for us to study it, but it is a very good code and I feel it will help us in our fire fighting duties." Romulus has been hit hard with fires recently. Two blazes struck the last week of January, the second inferno claiming the life of a 37-year-old father.

Building blocks

Pat Gresock, coordinator of Vocational Education Week at Romulus Senior High School, helps set up pictured squares depicting the theme: "Building Skills of America." Today marks the middle of the 5-day celebration, and many exhibits are on display in the lobby and in the classrooms of the high school. E. L. Sheffield, director of Career and Vocational Education, has been delighted by the response to the week-long project.—ANP photo.

Mapping history

Belleville's Bicentennial Committee gathered many of the city's former mayors and other elected officials together in December to tape an informal record of the city's history. Among those present were Belleville's first mayor, Orlo Roberts, (center), who served from 1946-50 and again from 1954 to 1958. Roberts gave his recollections, as did present mayor, Justin Emerson (left), and Jay Herkimer, who was mayor from 1962-64. Emerson and Herkimer look "lost in thought" as they study their coffee cups while someone reminisced about the good old days. — ANP photo.

Roast beef sandwiches top menus in school cafeterias

Hot open-faced roast beef sandwiches and swiss steak with mashed potatoes and gravy will be on tap for students in the cafeterias of the Van Buren and Romulus Community School districts next week.

Voc ed is theme of meet

Vocational education will be the theme of the Romulus Schools Compensatory Education Parent Advisory Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 17 at Romulus Senior High School, 9650 S. Wayne Road.

E. L. Sheffield, director of career and vocation education, will present a program that will show what the students are doing in those areas. He will also explain why voc ed is necessary in today's world.

The area of interest in vocational education by the advisory council centers around three things — how vocational training helps to prevent drop-outs; how well the school district uses state and federal money for these programs, and to show parents how the academic and vocational courses combine to produce a better citizen today.

Vocational courses offered at Romulus High School include business education, data processing, photography, store management, graphic arts, consumer education, health occupations, commercial foods, cosmetology, child care, welding, draft'g, building trades, auto mechanics and small engines.

Any interested person who missed the vocational educational open house this week is invited to attend the Feb. 17 meeting.

In Van Buren's elementary schools next week will start off with a menu lineup of juice, pizza, vegetable, icy bird and milk, followed by sausage patties, mashed potatoes and gravy, applesauce, bread and butter, pie and milk.

The bill of fare next Wednesday will be open-faced hot roast beef sandwiches, mashed potatoes and gravy, fruit, cake and milk.

Next Thursday the cafeterias will be serving soup, pizza, vegetable, cookies and milk, with macaroni and cheese or tacos, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit Jell-O, pudding and milk topping off the week.

In the junior high schools, the menu Monday will be beef turnovers with gravy salad, bread and butter, icy bird and milk, with oven-fried chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit Jell-O, pie and milk on tap for Tuesday.

Next Wednesday the menu will be Italian spaghetti with meat sauce, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit, pudding and milk.

Next Thursday the cafeterias will be serving swiss steak with mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetable, bread and butter, fruit Jell-O, cake and milk, while soup, grilled cheese sandwiches, french fries, fruit cobbler and milk will top off the week.

The alternate menu will include main entrees of Belleville burgers Monday, doubleburgers with cheese Tuesday, Coney Island foot-longs next Wednesday, Belleville burgers next Thursday and tacos next Friday.

In the Romulus Community Schools' cafeterias the menu Monday will be mashed potatoes with meat gravy, buttered green beans, bread, fruit cup and milk, followed by spaghetti with meat sauce, buttered peas, bread, pear cup and milk on Tuesday.

Next Wednesday the lineup will be che-che burgers or hot dogs, golden corn, rolls, fruit cup and milk, while turkey ala king, glazed carrots, bread, applesauce and milk are on tap for next Thursday.

Next Friday the menu will be tuna casserole, baked spinach, bread, fruit fluff and milk.

Two students to join EMU Stoic Society

Two residents of the Belleville-Romulus community have been invited to join the Stoic Society at Eastern Michigan University.

Lauren G. Nowak of Belleville and Rebecca Havenstein, a sophomore, of New Boston, have been invited to join the organization, which is modeled after the teachings of Zeno, the Greek philosopher who was the founder of the Stoic philosophy in 300 B.C. Miss Havenstein is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Havenstein of 3224 King, New Boston.

In order to be invited to join the Stoic Society, a student must have at least a 3.5 grade point average, show interest and helpfulness in general school affairs, have moral responsibility and demonstrate initiative.

Also in college news: Seven Belleville residents have been awarded their college degrees following recent commencement ceremonies at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Earning degrees were Edmund Brown of 48861 Denton Road, master of business administration; Victoria Desmarais of 16015 Martinsville Road, bachelor of arts; Lorraine Garrett of 8430 Oakville-Waltz Road, bachelor of science; R.E. Klosterman of I-94 Service Drive, master of science; Riley Mahar of 382 Rustic Lane; Caroline Price of 48920 Denton Road, bachelor of arts; and Dwight Smith of 48671 I-94 Service Drive, bachelor of fine arts.

Also earning college degrees from Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti recently were Belleville residents Walter Colley of 44055 Expressway, master of arts; Mary Corbett of 975 Sumpter Road, master of arts; Kathryn Ford of 48771 Denton Road, master of arts; Mary Pitcher of 368 E. Huron River Drive, master of arts; Irwin Scarano of 48971 Denton Road, master of business administration, and Larry Tabor of 9892 Wheeler, specialist in arts.

...is modeled after the teachings of Zeno...

The Romulus graduates were Leonara Pasut of 26855 Pennsylvania Road, master of arts degree; and James Sarnovsky of 15799 Birch Court, master of business administration degree.

And appearing in concert with the Western Michigan University Band on Feb. 20 will be two Belleville residents.

Deana Halcomb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Halcomb of 13045 Ormond Drive, Belleville, and Kathy Bassett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bassett of 44385 Harmony Lane, will be performing under the baton of conductor Eddie Green, director of bands at the Kalamazoo college.

For its program, the symphonic band will perform "Washington March" by Graffula, "Theme and Fantasia" by Russell, "Elegy" by John Barnes Chance and "Aegean Festival" by Andreas Makris.

Kelley orders firms to stop AAA boycott

Four local towing firms were among 25 members of the Downriver Towing Association which were slapped with a cease and desist order by Attorney General Frank Kelley who charging that the organization illegally boycotted members of the American Automobile Association of Michigan (AAA).

Kelley said: "The purpose of this illegal boycott is to raise the prices of towing services charged to AAA members. The law in our state does not allow a group of independent businesses to join together in this type of activity."

Kelley's order stems from a communication signed by alleged members of the Downriver Towing Association directed to AAA. That communication said members of the association would not provide road and towing services unless the rates for both were increased.

It is not known if all members of the Downriver Towing Association signed the communication.

The cease and desist order requests that each of the businesses charged enter into a consent agreement with Kelley's office to the effect that they will stop the boycott.

Kelley said: "I am hopeful that these businesses will voluntarily agree to stop this illegal action. But if they do not, this cease and desist order is the necessary first step before starting court action to gain a permanent injunction against this illegal boycott, and to recover the $50 per day penalty called for in the order."

"Any individual business can ask AAA to raise the fees they receive for providing service to AAA members," Kelley said. "however they cannot use the coercive means of a group boycott to get those higher prices."

"A boycott by a group of individual businesses tampers with the means by which prices are determined by the free enterprise system. I will not permit that tampering."

Delay of state aid dismays MASB

The Michigan Association of School Administrators (MASA) and the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB) have expressed dismay over a recent announcement from the State Treasury Department that half of the February school aid payment will be delayed up to five or six months because the state does not have enough cash on hand.

Erwin Davis, MASA president and superintendent of the Genesee Intermediate School District, pointed out that the delay from the state would require many local districts to borrow money in order to meet their financial obligations. "School districts also have cash flow problems," said Davis. "And they will have to borrow separately and at varying rates of interest. It seems that the problem could have been resolved a lot more efficiently if the State Treasury Department had secured one loan to resolve this temporary cash flow problem."

John Dodge MASB president and member of the Haslett Board of Education, agreed with Davis and further emphasized that "one loan taken by the state obviously would be at a lower interest rate resulting in an overall savings to the taxpayer of Michigan". Dodge also expressed concern that there was no advance notice of the Treasury Department's decision.

He pointed out that the Treasury Department has been splitting state aid payments for over a year causing school districts to borrow on many occasions in the past.

First respect, then help, our senior citizens

As a group they are discriminated against. Individually they are also the victims of discrimination. What was their offense against society? Growing old.

This group of citizens, no longer allowed to be a productive part of society, have been systematically shut out of the lives of their communities.

Why has this happened, and how long will it continue?

To understand why our senior citizens have found themselves in this situation it is only necessary to review the criteria for the spending of tax dollars within a community.

The old saw about the squeaking wheel getting the grease is true in many parts of our society, but is almost law governing the distribution of tax windfalls for community purposes. The bigger the squeak, the larger number of dollars are used to grease it.

Until recently our seniors have not had the spokesmen that other groups have had. They have not had the numbers that other groups have had, and they have not been able to garner the support that other groups have received.

Senior citizens have been warning us for years that if we have one thing in common it would have to be the fact that we will all become a member of their group sooner or later.

Response to those arguments was, that as a group the seniors did not have enough political clout to effect improvements in their situation, and that a politician, while able to mouth support for them, could not gain further political support for his own position by supporting expensive programs for a group that most others would just as soon have disappear.

That situation has remained with us too long. Our seniors — our own mothers and fathers — have provided our society with their talents for many years. They did so, just as we do today, for the purpose of trying to improve the life style of those they love.

It is time that society started a campaign to make things easier for our elderly. If society decrees that you may not engage in productive enterprise after you have reached a certain age, then society should also provide the means for the elderly to at least survive with dignity, after reaching that milestone.

It is encouraging to note that of late there has been movement in that direction by our lawmakers.

The plight of senior citizens is slowly becoming a cause that is attracting more followers. It is becoming a cause that even politicians can rally behind without fear.

A case in point.

Senator Riegle has introduced a bill in the U.S. Senate, which if approved by Congress would establish income maintenance for senior citizens.

Riegle's bill, S-490, would increase Federal Supplemental Security Income above the poverty level.

In Lansing, Rep. Varnum has introduced legislation which if approved would provide for the sale, to senior citizens, of utility stamps.

These stamps would be used for the payment of utility bills incurred by our senior citizens.

We support both Riegle's bill and Varnum's proposal. The seniors have paid their dues. It is time for the rest of us to pay ours.

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations, Peoples Community Hospital Authority

Health Beat

A nurse, by any other name—

"There is one thing which must be stressed. I am a registered nurse, and I am a male of the species homo sapiens. And, I prefer the description in that order."

The speaker was Joseph F. Latham, RN, Director of Nursing at the PCHA Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

"So often you hear the term 'male nurse' used to describe some one like myself. I feel as uncomfortable about that description as I do when I hear some one say 'female doctor' to indicate a physician who just happens to be a lady," he said.

"Being a male in the profession definitely has distinct advantages," he said, "in that I'm more mobile, and obviously I've not had to interrupt my career for child bearing as happens to so many RN's who are female."

Latham holds a Masters in Nursing Administration granted by Wayne State University, and a Bachelors in Psychology and Sociology awarded by The University of Michigan.

He said that his original career objective was to become a physician; however, military service, marriage, and parenthood made their demands and he instead opted for a career in nursing.

Latham worked for 11 years at Hurley Hospital in Flint—his home town — before joining PCHA at the Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti in April of 1973. He has been at Annapolis since November of 1976.

As Director of Nursing, he is responsible for the nursing service offered to patients through the many departments: OB-GYN, OR, ER, Pediatrics, ICU-CCU, CSR, and In-Service Instruction.

He said that of the approximate 1100 employees at Annapolis Hospital, a little more than 500 are in the nursing service. According to Latham, this proportion is generally the case in any hospital — somewhere between 50 to 65 percent of a hospital's employee complement will be assigned to nursing.

Indeed, the budget for the nursing service is the coming fiscal year will approach $1 million.

During his progress up the career ladder, Latham has moved from technical aide, to bedside nurse, to assistant director, and finally to the chief administrative position in a major hospital.

He said that in his judgment a nurse who has ambitions to be a director must possess three important attributes: "Obviously, one must be highly knowledgeable; not only in the constantly changing clinical aspects of technical nursing, but also in the science and art of administration."

"Secondly, one must be able to apply the knowledge gained from books — you must develop skills in practical application, in the techniques of organization, and of paramount importance, you must be able to articulate your positions both verbally and in writing."

"The third attribute, and perhaps the most important, is that an administrator must have the ability to lead."

"Leadership takes several forms. As a leader, you must respect the persons who serve as your subordinates, and as a leader, you must be prepared to make the sometimes 'hard decisions' which must be made."

"And as a leader, you must be innovative and not at all satisfied with the status quo. You must constantly analyze your role and the services you are expected to provide to find better, more efficient ways of doing business."

"Complacency is the antithesis of progress." There is one more thing about him that he asked be mentioned: Joe Latham is a Black man.

"I'm really three minorities," he laughed, "I'm a male in a predominantly female profession, I'm a Black and I'm part American Indian."

He said he was convinced that he had not suffered any damaging overt prejudicial treatment during his career.

"People must understand," he said, "that I've spent 11 years in college — sometimes at tremendous personal sacrifice — to get where I am today."

"There is room at the top for those who are willing to prepare themselves to accept the responsibilities which go hand in hand with the privileges of top-level administrative positions."

He said that he hoped he could be a model for other minorities — a success story which says "you can do it."

But he emphasized, however, that his principal goal is to be remembered as a model for his profession.

"When I talk to an employee, a physician, a patient, or anyone else, I don't see color. I see another human being asking for advice or assistance, and I try to respond to these people with the sensitivity I feel we all should demonstrate in this adventure of life."

Latham lives in Westland with his wife Monica and his three daughters. And it was Monica which perhaps best summed up her feelings about Joseph Latham, RN.

When once asked how it felt to be married to a male nurse, she replied with a twinkle in her eye, "Joe is a nurse, and a good one and Joe is a man, and a good one!..."

Your wallet and the public purse

By JOHN W. GARDNER

If a criminal knocked you down in the street and stole $50 from your wallet or purse, you'd be outraged. You'd talk about it for years. You'd never forget it.

When corrupt government officials steal millions from you, you read about it, shake your head in disgust and then dismiss it from your mind. Why? If you think the money stolen by corrupt government officials isn't being lifted from your wallet, you'd better think again.

There are a lot of honest politicians. Thank God, they exist. But the dishonest ones also exist.

If we're going to do anything about them, we'll have to begin with some basic preventive measures. One is to require our top officials—elected and appointed—to disclose their financial holdings. Citizens have a right to know whether their public officials have a personal financial stake in the very matters on which they're making official decisions—in other words, whether they have a conflict of interest.

The Government's own inspectors—the General Accounting Office—recently uncovered hundreds of such conflicts of interest in the executive branch bureaucracy. They found, among other things,

- that an oil engineer in the Interior Department, responsible for monitoring oil company operations on leased lands, had owned stock since 1971 in major oil companies operating on leased lands;

- that a Civil Aeronautics Board employee, responsible for approving air fare requests, owned stock in a firm engaged in air charter, air taxi and flight services;

- that a Federal Maritime Commission official held 584 shares of stock in a company which was regulated by the Commission and had maritime operations in his district;

- that only seven out of the 125 Federal Power Commission officials required to file a financial statement in 1973 actually did so;

- that the Civil Aeronautics Board procedures are so vague that no CAB official filed a report in 1970, 1971 or 1973.

In one agency after another, the GAO found that nobody had set down a definition of what a conflict of interest was, that financial statements were not being reviewed, and that follow up remedial action was hardly ever taken.

The situation in the Congress is as unsatisfactory as it is in the Executive Branch. Congressional disclosure requirements are so weak that the public can have only the vaguest information on the extent of our lawmakers' financial holdings. We do know that in 1974,

- 86 Representatives had interests in banks;

- 48 had investments in the top 100 defense contractors;

- 66 House members were receiving income from their law firms.

The kind of disclosure law we need would not assert that such outside financial interests are necessarily improper. It would just insist that they be publicly disclosed.

Let us be clear about what is needed in the way of disclosure. Citizens do not need to know a public official's net worth. It tells them nothing of significance for the political process. Nor do citizens need to see an official's income tax form.

Citizens do need to know where the public official gets his or her income (specific stocks owned, real property, etc.). And they need to know approximately the extent of the holdings. For example, if the official receives income from a law firm, a disclosure statute might require that he specify whether it is in the range between $1,000 and $10,000 per year, between $10,000 and $50,000, between $50,000 and $100,000 or over $100,000.

Some federal officials argue that requiring them to disclose their personal finances is a gross invasion of privacy. But no official is coerced into public service. If they voluntarily assume responsibility for decisions affecting large amounts of our tax dollars, we must ask that they give us certain basic information on their own finances. It just makes sense.

On the brighter side

"Can I ask you a question?"

By JIM BRADLEY
Eagle Staff Writer

—NOTES FROM A REPORTER'S FADED SHIRT CUFF...

Eating out is one of the growing trends of our day with both husbands and wives working. So it's nice when you find a "home away from home" by getting to know a friendly waitress when you eat in the same place often. They give you that extra special attention and even know that you take Sweet and Low in your coffee instead of sugar.

...My early morning breakfasts at Leright's on Wayne Road are brightened by Jean, Loretta, Marcie, "Mom," and Hilda...The evening visits of my wife and I are made pleasant by two sparkling redheads, Cathy and Lura, and eager-beaver Mary, Brenda and Barbara...

...Settling back in our booth one evening at Perkins' Cake and Steak on Wayne Road in Westland, the waitress took our order and then looked at me a second time. (That's not unusual, because many people look at me a second or third time.)

"Can I ask you a question?" asked Linda, the smiling waitress who gave me a double-take. "Be my guest," I laughed.

"Aren't you a writer for the Eagle?" she inquired. When I answered in the affirmative, she said, "I thought I recognized you from the picture in your column."

...As she hurried to fill our order, I leaned back and glanced at my wife. "How does it feel to be eating out with a well-known celebrity?" I asked, getting a little high on an ego trip.

"I hadn't even noticed," she yawned. "Do you write a column for some newspaper?" (She really knows how to hurt a guy.)

Young Linda J. and Dawn M., two teenage waitresses, buzzed around our booth, asking why we hadn't come in sooner so they could wait on us. "You're just lucky, I guess," came my joking reply.

...Do you eat out often? Is there someplace that is a "home away from home" for you, where the food is delicious, the service prompt and the waitresses friendly?...For the growing trend in eating out, it sure is nice to have a dependable eatery.

...WESTLAND MAYOR TOM TAYLOR stopped by my desk the other day and chatted awhile. (I'm glad he has good taste)...He told me about the "racquet ball" craze that has hit city hall, with employees of different departments challenging each other... "Twinkle Toes" Tom and his light-footed partner, Andy Spisak, clobbered the red-suited team of Glenn Shaw and Ed "Smokey" Gunther...Someone said not to call him "Smokey" so I'll have to remember that next time, "Smokey."

...Taylor and Spisak overcame an 11-0 deficit to whip Shaw and Gunther, 22-20, in overtime and then easily disposed of them, 21-6, in their second match... (Can someone tell me where Andy got that hat he wears all the time?)

...Speaking of TOM TAYLOR (as people often do), I asked why he didn't invite me to his Mayor's Ball. He answered, "I didn't know you were the partying kind." (They didn't serve anything stronger than red-pop, did they?)...To add insult to injury, not only did Mayor Taylor ignore his good friend (me), but so did Jimmy Carter. I didn't get an invitation to the President's inaugural ball in Wash. D.C....

...Westland Councilman CHARLES "TRAV" GRIFFIN is having a dinner-dance on Feb. 11 and I'm sure my invitation is already in the mail...Everybody's having a "ball" it seems...If Westland Finance Director ROBERT MATZO had a big dinner-dance, could it be called a "Matzo Ball"?

...Speaking of Westland, I noticed the Westland Observer newspaper has misspelled it's own editor's name on the editorial page. Sandy Armbruster, they've got your name spelled Ambruster. They left the "R" out of your name. Being a stickler for correct spelling, I'd like to see them spell it correctly. "R" you ready to have them change it? I'm ready if you "R".

What ever happened to Roger Turner?

...IN WAYNE, PAUL LADA has gone from Councilman all the way to the top spot of mayor...Can that be called climbing the "Lada" of success?...Councilman PAT NORTON entertains me everytime I cover a Wayne Council meeting. He has a way with words — and I enjoy listening to him describe his position and varying ramifications concerning different matters... He says he likes to read my column and I like to hear him pontificate, which makes for a pretty even deal...

What ever happened to Bill Faust?

...IN ROMULUS, several have been rumored to be running for mayor. Council members BEVERLY MCANALLY AND WILLIAM OAKLEY has been mentioned as definite maybes...and ex-mayor TERRY TROUTT could also toss his hat in the ring. Other names could be added to the list, making it quite a contest...Why, I understand that even present Mayor James Stewart is considering running for mayor.

...Romulus Director of Public Safety, JERRY KUBIAK, just returned from a two-week cruise in the Caribbean...tanned and handsome as ever. He's offering bottled sunshine at a very reasonable price to any buyers... With so many people "questioning" the Romulus water and sewer department figures, I just want to say "hi" to HELEN GALLIEN, LARRY MOORE and MIKE HERMAN (in the short-sleeve shirt)...Just want to say, "I believe you, gang."

...BONNIE LOZIER has got to be the best secretary anyplace. She works for Mayor Stewart and introduced me to a new person at city hall by saying, "This is Jim Bradley, the greatest writer I've ever read. I read everything he writes and it makes my day." (I sure wish my boss felt that way.)

...The water rate controversy continues to rage in Romulus and it has divided the people very much. I got to thinking how Moses in the Bible parted the waters...now, it seems, the waters are "parting" the people...

...IN BELLEVILLE, Mayor JUSTIN EMERSON says the city received a bill from Wayne County for 27 cents. "By the time they put a 13 cent stamp on their letter and we put a 13 cent stamp on our return letter, that'll leave one cent to spare," he laughed. ...That penny won't quite cover secretarial fees on both ends of the line, will it?

...LEE SMITH, society editor for our Belleville and Romulus weeklies, was telling me that her husband, Bert, has worked for the Belleville postoffice 28 years. He's a real FIRST CLASS MALE!...

...IN VAN BUREN TOWNSHIP, Supervisor PATRICA CULLIN has recently been named an alternate delegate to represent the Wayne County Township Supervisors Association on the executive committee of SEMCOG... Travelling through CANTON TOWNSHIP, I wondered whatever happened to the rural, country-like community I covered as a reporter seven years ago? Things were so casual then — before the "Building boom" arrived.

...Fire Chief MEL PAULIN and I used to keep track of grass fires, which was about the biggest news item in those days...Remember when Canton got its first rescue van, Mel, and I showed you the misspelling of the words lettered on the side which said: "Resque Squad."

What ever happened to John Flodin?

...Those were the good old days in 1970... when things were carefree and the livin' was easy. I was the first editor the Canton Eagle ever had and I remember one of my favorite headlines. When the township was getting ready to count the people, I wrote a headline that read: "Canton wants people to come to its census." (It'd be nice if we all came to our senses)...

What ever happened to Charles McIlhargey...Harry Howard... "Chum" Stockwell ... P.D. Graham... Manny Lentine... Phil Dingelday...Ken McKay (senior and junior)... Claude Howard...Doc Carpenter... Tom Svitkovich...Dick McKnight... and Gordie Davis.

...Anyone who can locate all these individuals will win a free round-trip visit to Hamtramck on the next streetcar that leaves city hall...

Civil servants can be pleasant

To the Editor:

Having just had a surprising and wonderful experience, I would like very much to tell you about it.

This is to thank very much a really swell person. Her name is Mrs. Leona Buhler who works for the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Being fairly new in Belleville (only 5 years) and don't drive, I don't know the streets or locations of different public offices.

I called the Chamber of Commerce to see if anyone could help me, knowing it had nothing to do with their office. Mrs. Buhler answered real friendly like and told me all the information I needed. Her pleasantness and kindness was such a wonderful and rewarding surprise to find from a civil servant, and others, these days, I just had to tell you about it.

People now a days are so short and gruff with one another and sarcastic, it makes everyday life miserable.

We should have more people like Leona Buhler who love to put a smile, and a laugh on peoples faces and in their hearts every day.

What a different and Happy World this would be.

From the State House

State funding — an even chance

By GARY OWEN
State Representative—22nd District

Chelsea receives $105.62.

About 8 percent to 9 percent of the pupils of the state live in school districts where the local yield for each mill levied exceeds the state-local guarantee the state can make for other districts. For example, the Ann Arbor district has $47,096 in "SEV" behind each child. Each mill levied there will bring in nearly $47.10 per pupil, which is more than the $43.90 and $39.60 the state can guarantee other districts on their levies. Such "out of formula" districts receive no basic membership aid. They do, however, receive the same categorical aid for transportation, special education, vocational education, etc., as other districts, and the same state payments of Social Security and retirement costs.

Unlike local revenues, which must all come from the various types of property taxes, the state revenues used in support of the schools come from a wide variety of sources. Nearly half of the state funding comes from an "earmarked" School Aid Fund, which is made up of 60 percent of the sales tax, 2 cents of cigarette tax and a 4 percent excise tax on liquor. All of the rest comes from the state's General Fund, which is made up of all unrestricted state taxes - the personal income tax, the new Single Business Tax, the remainder of the sales tax, and many miscellaneous and minor sources, such as the Michigan lottery.

A great many people still wonder why lottery revenues cannot be used as the major source of support for the schools, thus relieving the demands upon the property tax and other sources. The answer is that, as part of the General Fund, lottery revenues are indeed used for the schools, but the lottery has never yet netted more than $80 million a year. This is little more than 2.2 percent of the $3.5 billion the schools will need as revenue in 1976-77. I have consistently advocated that we earmark lottery funds for education so as to end public confusion on this issue.

D.G. FASSETT

Mayor Stewart talks about water rates

First, I would like to heartily commend Editor Fassett's recent decision to provide elected officials a regular, established forum for discussion of issues and exchange of opinion.

Regrettably, my first occasion to utilize this offer must deal with the most pressing, serious problem facing the citizens of Romulus: the Water and Sewer Department's continuing operational indebtedness.

A brief, historical review will serve to illustrate the severity of the present situation.

The City of Romulus purchases water from the City of Detroit. Since 1967, the amount charged Romulus by the City of Detroit has risen 268 percent. However, the citizens of Romulus have not been charged a single rate increase for water services!

As a result, the City of Romulus

Water and Sewer Department has been forced to deficit spend over the past five years, to a current operating deficit of approximately $700,000, with an estimated $1 million spending deficit by June 30, 1977.

The City Council has received documentation of this growing indebtedness from three separate auditing firms, on five different occasions, yet has failed to take effective action.

The City of Romulus has not been able to pay its' water bills to the City of Detroit since September, 1976; and currently owes more than $125,000, including penalties.

Under a contract agreement with Detroit, if bills are left outstanding for three months or more, all water services can be terminated. This week, Detroit will be billing Romulus for its January, 1977 water usage. Thus further increasing the balance due.

Contrary of recent charges by Councilperson McAnally, the cause of this indebtedness is not a result of "excessive administration charges," or "the cost of increased personnel..."

In fact, there are fewer city employees now than under the previous administration. Several recent positions, in other departments, were made available under federal programs; without adding any additional burden to the Water and Sewer Department or to the taxpayer.

Within the past six months, I instructed Water Sewer Department head, Dave Paul to try to keep overtime to a minimum, except in extreme emergencies - to reduce purchases and to do whatever was necessary administratively in order to hold down costs.

In a further attempt to keep costs down, I was forced to lay off 21 workers from the Water and Sewer Department last Friday, a move that will force curtailment of city services during this record-breaking winter.

Since taking office in November, 1975, I have repeatedly urged the Council to take prompt action to adopt a new water and sewer ordinance.

After many months of discussion, the Council finally instituted a temporary, stop-gap increase in water rates by 39 percent in November, 1976. However, this increase was subsequently repealed.

This last action brings us to the present crisis situation, which may soon result in a termination of all water services to the citizens of Romulus.

Therefore, at last Tuesday's Council meeting, I was forced to declare a 'State of Emergency' for the City of Romulus.

I reported, at that meeting, that the city must borrow approximately one million dollars immediately in order to cover current unpaid bills. I also noted, that, according to a Michigan State auditor, the City of Romulus is legally prohibited from borrowing any money or to float any bonds as long as the City of Romulus is forced to charge less for water than it is charged by the City of Detroit.

Therefore, I proposed that the City Council approve a new ordinance which increases the water rate to $5.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, as recommended by Mrs. John Burt, a CPA with Icerman, Johnson and Hoffman at a special meeting of the Council on November 11, 1976.

Furthermore, I will recommend that the Council approve a complete rate study to be completed by the established firm of Ayres, Lewis,

ROMULUS MAYOR
JAMES STEWART

Norris and May of Ann Arbor, I will also propose that the results of that study should be binding on the council, and that the rate suggested in the study be implemented upon its completion.

Failure of the Council to take immediate and decisive action on my proposals, will force me to take this matter directly to you, the citizens.

Belleville High's problems are very real

To the Editor:

Congratulations are in order for the Van Buren Board of Education and the administration of Belleville High School. Once again they have moved swiftly and effectively to stamp out the drug problem at B.H.S.

"If I can close my eyes, then it's not really there."

Consistency is one of the Van Buren school system's most remarkable traits. It's incredible to believe its views and attitudes are the same now as they were two years ago, four years ago, 25 years ago.

When the story of Jan. 23 broke, its aftereffects were not so hard to foresee. Alarm and dismay on the part of the board, demands by the superintendent, promises by the administrators. What was shocking and disheartening to read were the personal attacks launched by board members and the complete turnaround by one of the finest educators in the Van Buren school system, assistant principal Carlos Florido.

These are not the views of an outsider totally removed from the Belleville situation. As a 1975 graduate of B.H.S. I helped organize and run the Student Service Center. It was here that I gained many of my observations and experiences: drug overdoses, runaways, suicides. Belleville — the stories I could tell you about yourself would curl your hair. But then, who would believe me? Things like that don't happen in Belleville. The school board has outlawed them.

David Whiting's investigation into the drug problem at B.H.S. was the finest piece of reporting the Press has ever done on the situation in the Van Buren school system. For the first time it studied the problem where it really exists: not in John Ford's office but in the hallways and parking lots of Belleville High School.

The article was fair, unbiased and in-depth. There was still one more aspect that upset the Board and administration. It spoke the truth.

For many people the truth is too ugly to believe, and why look at a mound of garbage when the clean white snow covers it so nicely?

By attacking Bob Harkai, closing down the Student Service Center and moving his office up front with the big kids, the Board and administration have ironically made the problem more visible. Instead of allowing a student to relax and "come down" in the Center, assistant principals Larry Tabor and Carlos Florido will now be better able to spot drug users; they'll be the students passed out in the west wing or throwing their guts up in the boys' john.

Not very pretty, is it?

Harkai has become everyone's whipping boy; as if he is the sole cause of the drug problem at B.H.S. Wrong again. Bob Harkai is one of the best things ever to come along in dealing with Belleville's drug problem. Ask the dozen or so people that are still alive today because Bob was able to rush them to the hospital before it was too late.

Harkai is being accused of badgering Press reporter Whiting into covering the story. Nothing could be farther from the truth. I was present on two occasions when Press reporters called Bob and staff member Barry Henderson. This is The Press' story, not Bob's.

It has been charged that "Bob Harkai is motivated...for Bob Harkai; for more money or something like that." Check your records, James Sayre. What administrator failed to receive a raise this year? How near the bottom of the list is Harkai when it comes to salary, teachers or administrators? Is it fitting wages for a man who sits on Gov. Miliken's Committee on Substance Abuse and is respected as an expert in his field wherever he travels in the state?

As being in it for the money, would you rush out of your home at two in the morning after being awakened by a frantic voice on the end of a phone line, hysterical with fear that her friend was dying of a PCP overdose? I've seen Bob Harkai do it.

In some community circles Board member James Sayre is a respected businessman and civic leader. Normally it would be too incredible to believe that someone in his position would resort to such personal attacks as he has done with Harkai and Henderson. To assault a man's integrity and pride is one matter, but to dredge up memories of 17-year-old boy's late father and accuse him of being a hatchetman is inexcusable.

How responsible is it for Superintendent Dale Kaulitz to announce to one mother that no parents would join him for a visit to The Press, but in fact transport a handpicked group of 15 (including three "concerned parents") to Ypsilanti for a meeting with a Press reporter?

And this matter of only 30 students at B.H.S. being involved with hard drugs. 30 students? I've seen that many come and go in one school day. Wise up, concerned parents, the number is tenfold that.

Higher echelon commands have been a constant source of difficulty for the Student Service Center. Monthly reports were demanded by administrators and board members. Once provided they were totally ignored, never questioned. Outrageous demands were made that the SSC would serve as a pipeline to turn in drug users to the front office. This was a particularly intelligent proposal. To give information you must receive information, and you don't receive information by turning your informant over to the authorities.

The attitude of the Board and the administration has always been one of "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil." At a time of crisis the order of the day has been "Heads will roll!" Unfortunately the royalty is almost totally ignorant of what comprises its kingdom, in this case the Center. The graphic pornography Kaulitz refers to is a 10-page pamphlet on venereal disease published by the State Public Health Department. In my two years as an SSC staff member, principal John Ford had never stepped a foot inside our facility. And still they wonder why they don't know anything. Perhaps they never listened.

What is the saddest, most distressing aspect of this whole mess is the complete about-face done by assistant principal Carlos Florido. The Student Service Center has never enjoyed a closer friend in the front office than Carlos. At times he was our staunchest and, in some cases, only defender. When budget cuts had to be made, Carlos fought tooth and nail to save the SSC. If there was ever one man who would be expected to help carry the Center's banner at a time like this, Carlos Florido would be that man.

As a close personal friend of mine for the past four years, Carlos has shared with me many of his greatest hopes and fears on the lot of Belleville High School. During the past year he voiced his concern over the mental health of B.H.S. and what can be done to insure its preservation. Time and again he was praised the job Bob and the Center are doing, stating if it weren't for the SSC, tensions in the building would be at a constant pressure cooker level, perhaps one degree away from blowing the lid off his high school.

Carlos Florido is one of the few reasons B.H.S. has been able to progress in the last few years. His insights, philosophies and proposals have been at the forefront of Belleville's march forward, especially at a time when regression would seem to be the more likely avenue. And now, a man whose dreams and aspirations were once ideals to behold and admire, whose compassion and understanding for a troubled teenager were unequalled in this system, whose beliefs and philosophies were models for us all to esteem, has lowered himself to publicly attacking his school body president and placing a "public address system" before the well-being of his students.

What will be even sadder is that in a case like this someone's head must go on the block to atone for the mistakes others have made. School boards are invincible. Head principals are out of reach. Assistant principals, on the other hand, are a dime-a-dozen, especially those who choose to jump to the other bank in the nick of time, only to lose their shaky foothold and slip back into the murky waters of swirling deceit. I'm truly sorry that Carlos Florido will not be returning to Belleville, but perhaps that is for the best. The punishment of watching his school cave in around him after he worked so hard to build it would be painful.

I hope I've been able to shed some light on this whole dark, dirty mess. All I've hoped to accomplish is some truth when lies and innuendo fly thick in the air. The time has come for a voice to be heard in defense of Bob Harkai and his program. One man and a school full of students are no match for a high school administration and its ruling Board of Education.

I close with one word to John Ford, Dale Kaulitz, James Sayre and all those concerned in the Belleville community: Your high school and your educational system are jungles, and jungles rarely clear out. They only get deeper and thicker.

Winter sports industry boom increases campground usage

Michigan's booming winter sports industry is the major reason for this year's expected 8 to 10 percent business increase at the state's 107 winterized private campgrounds, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. "Snowmobilers, ice fishermen and downhill skiers have ideal conditions this winter in Michigan, and up-and-coming sports like cross-country skiing are bringing more people outdoors than ever," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. Because of improved trailer insulation, heating and design and more services, staying in a campground during freezing weather is far more comfortable than it used to be even a few years ago, he added.

Daily rates at the campgrounds range from $4 to $7.50, with most charging between $4 and $5.

East Michigan, with 42, has the largest number of private campgrounds open this winter. Forty facilities operate year-around in west Michigan, with 18 in the Upper Peninsula and seven in the southeast section of the state.

Most parks are within an hour's drive of one of Michigan's 58 ski areas and many are near state and federal lands open to snowmobiling and cross-country skiing, plus good fishing lakes.

All campgrounds offer electrical hookups, with 85 having heated showers and restrooms. Forty-four have heated activities buildings and 28 have on-site sewage hookups, while stores on park grounds are available in 49.

"A few even offer trailer, heater and snowmobile or cross-country ski rental," Ratke said. Four campgrounds—Whiskey Creek near Hart, Four Seasons at Harrison, Four Seasons at Midland and San Sheri near Frederic—list restaurants on the premises.

Ninety-five percent of the facilities are open daily and take reservations for wintertime camping. Auto Club noted that several years ago, many private campgrounds open in winter operated weekends only.

Fifty-six state parks also are open for winter camping, but service buildings are closed. Auto Club advised campers planning to visit a state park to call ahead to assure snow plowing.

State, private camp areas open for snowy adventure

With more than 150 private and state campgrounds to choose from for winter adventure, Western Wayne County residents can find accommodations ranging from primitive to all the conveniences of home.

Roadblocks gone for new jail floors

The Michigan Corrections Commission has indicated that there are no legal restrictions to block Wayne County Commissioner Samuel A. Turner's plans for construction of 384-bed 4-story addition to the new county jail.

"The additional space I have proposed will double the capacity of the new jail for less than one-third of the total cost," Turner said. "This can be accomplished within the already approved millage, placing no additional burden on the taxpayer."

In May, Wayne County citizens approved a 5-year half mill property tax increase, expected to produce a total of $37 million, for construction of a new jail.

Original plans called for a 7-story, 384 cell facility, costing $22 million. Turner's proposal will add four floors with 384 cells at an added cost of $9 million. This, along with its 100-prisoner holding facility will bring the new 11-story jail's total capacity to 868.

A Board of Commissioners subcommittee on new jail construction Feb. 3 voted to recommend approval of the addition to the board's Ways and Means Committee, of which all 27 commissioners are members.

Edgar L. Harris, chairman of the subcommittee stated: "We now are housing prisoners waiting for trial in temporary jail facilities in the Detroit House of Correction and in M Building at Wayne County General Hospital in Westland. This has been a costly and inefficient operation at best."

"This additional jail space will allow us to close these facilities which were intended to be temporary and never designed for long term use," he said.

Commenting on DeHoCo and M Building, Turner said: "In order to maintain these temporary quarters, we have had to pay sheriff's deputies overtime, in addition to transporting prisoners from far Western Wayne County into downtown to Recorder's and Circuit Courts for trial. "This has been a devastating cost."

"It is our belief that the new 11-story jail, along with the existing 720-prisoner county jail, will satisfy all of the county detention needs for many years to come," Harris declared. "It will consolidate the county's entire jail facility into one efficient operation, providing tighter security and a dollar saving as well."

According to Harris, a tunnel will connect the new facility with the existing 720-cell jail and Recorder's Court.

Groundbreaking is scheduled for mid-April and construction is expected to be completed by October 1979.

Recheck fed tax

Taxpayers should double-check their tax returns before filing since errors can slow processing and delay any refund that might be due, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) said.

Some of the most common taxpayer mistakes on tax returns, according to the IRS, include arithmetic errors, use of the wrong tax table or schedules, and failure to sign the return or to attach all necessary documents.

The IRS also urged taxpayers to use the peel-off label that comes with the tax package on their returns in order to avoid possible Social Security number errors. Taxpayers also can save time and speed up processing by mailing their returns in the coded, pre-addressed envelope found in their tax packages, according to the IRS.

Let IRS do your figuring

Taxpayers can elect to have the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) compute their income tax on either the Short Form 1040A, or long Form 1040, if they have an adjusted gross income of $20,000 or less. Persons filing Form 1040 also must take the standard deduction to qualify for the computation, the IRS said.

Another requirement, according to the IRS, is that the taxpayer's income must be solely from wages, salary, tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities.

To take advantage of IRS computing the tax, the taxpayer need only complete certain portions of his or her tax return, attach all W-2 Forms, sign the returns, and mail it by April 15 to the address listed in the tax instruction booklet.

The tax will be determined from the proper tax table and the taxpayer will either receive a refund for any overpayment or be notified of the amount of any tax due.

Exact details appear in the tax package instructions mailed earlier to each taxpayer.

Crackdown on blight

Sumpter Township officials want to crack down on the blight and junk cars in the area and bring a sense of pride to the community. The Board of Trustees are in the process of passing blight and zoning ordinances which will effectively deal with the problem, like this scene on Oakville-Waltz Road on the far south side of the township. It is just one of many that are repeated throughout the township. — ANP photo.

Michigan Consolidated lets customers read own meters

To allow for energy conservation efforts during severely cold weather, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. is giving most of its residential heating customers in Wayne and Washtenaw counties the opportunity to read their gas meters and send the results back on a post-paid card they will be receiving in the mail this month. "Since late December, we have

Parent classes offered

A series of three Expectant Parent Classes has been scheduled by the Wayne County Health Department during the month of February. Classes will meet for six consecutive weeks either from 5 to 7 p.m. or 7 to 9 p.m., depending on the response of registrants. The classes will be led by a public health nurse and will allow class members an opportunity to discuss questions about pregnancy, labor, delivery infant care and other concerns of common interest to the group. The classes will be held at the South Health Center, 21201 Eureka Road, Taylor, beginning Feb. 22; at Outer Drive Hospital, 26400 W. Outer Drive, Lincoln Park, starting Feb. 23, and at the Wayne County Health Center, located on Merriman Road north of Michigan Avenue in Westland, beginning Feb. 23. Since size of the groups will be limited, interested persons are urged to register early. For registration or further information, call the Wayne County Health Department at 274-2800, or 729-2211, ext. 390, daily between 9 a.m. at 4 p.m.

I-94 at Middlebelt & Merriman Roads

PUBLIC MEETING

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation will have representatives present at a public meeting from 4 to 8 P.M., Thursday, March 10, 1977, in the Council Chambers, Romulus Municipal Building, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan. The purpose of this meeting is to provide the opportunity for the public to stop in and discuss future improvements to the I-94 Middlebelt and Merriman Road interchange, in Romulus, Michigan. It is the intent of the Department to not only invite, but also to encourage citizen involvement and participation in this study. It must be stressed that this is not a public hearing on recommended highway improvements, as there have been none selected. The purpose of the meeting is to gain input from local residents and to get their views on recommended highway improvements. Brochures will be available at the meeting. Additional information may be obtained by contacting:

been unable to make actual readings of some 412,000 meters of our residential heating customers who are not on our budget payment plan," said Charles R. Montgomery, president of Michigan Consolidated. "We are therefore asking them to mark the dial on a postcard they will be receiving and then mail it back to us promptly." Montgomery said the utility is taking the step because some 1,600 Michigan Consolidated employees in Wayne and Washtenaw counties, including meter readers, have been on strike since Dec. 21, 1976. "Since the strike began, we have been estimating the bills of customers in the affected areas," he said. "Our estimating procedure is an accurate one, but we know that many of our heating customers may have taken conservation steps, such as dialing back their thermostats, in recent weeks. Without an actual meter read, we have no way of knowing this." With an actual read by the customer Michigan Consolidated will be able to determine any reductions in gas consumption, will bill based on the customer's reading and then will adjust its estimating factors for each account where necessary for future billing purposes. "As a normal practice, Michigan Consolidated makes actual reads of customers' meters six times a year on alternate months and estimates bills for the remaining six months," Montgomery added. "And while we have been able to prepare estimated bills which we feel are accurate for our customers in Wayne and Washtenaw counties, we know that some of these customers would prefer to have us bill to an actual read. "This is especially true for those customers who have made special efforts to conserve natural gas by dialing back thermostats and installing insulation during this prolonged period of extremely cold weather." The strike by members of Local 80, Service Employees International Union AFL-CIO, began Dec. 21 after the union membership rejected a new 3-year contract tentatively agreed upon by union and company negotiators. The contract provides for a 26.5 percent wage increase over the three years. In addition to meter readers, those on strike include servicemen and crews involved in the maintenance of underground natural gas mains.

The Water and Sewer Department has experienced a high number of service calls for frozen water lines and water meters, not to mention the record number of main breaks. This has required a shift of personnel away from the meter department to help attend to those problems caused by the weather. Therefore, those customers living on the above named streets will not have their meters read by this department. As a result, we request that you read your own meter and report the reading into the Billing Department at 941-0666, Extensions 37, 38, 39 or 74. THE CORRECT WAY TO READ THE METER IS FROM LEFT TO RIGHT.

This will be the only reading of your meter at this time. If we do not receive the reading by 5:00 p.m., Monday, February 14, 1977, your bill will be estimated. We apologize for the inconvenience, but thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Graham goes to D.C.

Airman David A. Graham, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Graham of 6577 Hivon Road, Carleton, has received a new assignment, following graduation from the refrigeration and air conditioning specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command at Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex.

Airman Graham, now trained to maintain refrigeration and air conditioning equipment, will go to Bolling Air Force Base, District of Columbia, for duty with a unit of the Military Airlift Command. Completion of the course enables the airman to receive academic credits through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Graham is a 1976 graduate of Lincoln High School in Ypsilanti.

Also in the armed forces:

Airman I. C. Keith W. Briscoe, the son of Mrs. Grace Reitz of Belleville, is participating in Red Flag, a Tactical Air Command training exercise conducted at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Airman Briscoe is an aircraft maintenance specialist at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C., with the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, whose 4-F Phantom aircrews took part in simulated aerial combat and flew other close air support related missions.

The exercise was designed to test the capabilities of both aircrew and support personnel.

The airman graduated from Wayne Memorial High School in 1974. His father, William R. Briscoe, lives at 5460 Inkster Road, Dearborn Heights.

Navy Aviation Boatswain's Mate Airman Daniel Trumble, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Trumble of 28350 Goddard, and whose wife, Robin, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown of 10625 Shook, all of Romulus, recently participated in Exercise "Readex 1-77" in the South China and Philippine seas.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Midway, homeported in Yokosuka, Japan.

"Readex 1-77", which involved 22 ships and nearly 200 aircraft was designed to test and enhance the antisubmarine and anti-air warfare preparedness of participating Seventh Fleet units.

A 1975 graduate of Romulus Senior High School, Trumble joined the Navy in January 1976.

The U.S. Air Force has promoted Sharon M. Okouchi, the daughter of Joseph A. Porter of 36845 Sibley Road, New Boston, to the rank of senior airman.

Airman Okouchi is serving at March Air Force Base, Calif., as a medical administrative specialist.

Grant funds meet

Sen. William Faust (D-13th District) has announced a Community Assistance Grant of $700 has been awarded to the Wayne County Intermediate School District by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The funds, which are being matched locally, will be used in support of the Intermediate School District's 2-day art conference for students and teachers in Wayne County on May 6 and 7.

Funds to support these projects are part of an ongoing community arts program sponsored by the Council for the Arts, a state agency which derives its financial support from the State Legislature, the National Endowment for the Arts and private contributions.

The Michigan Council for the Arts was established in 1966 and assists a wide variety of cultural programs and services, sponsored by community organizations and other groups throughout the state.

CITY OF ROMULUS

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that City of Romulus will hold Public Hearing on Community Development and Housing Needs (pursuant to U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's Community Block Grant Program). The hearings will be held in the Council Chambers at Romulus City Hall, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan, 48174 at the following times:

February 8, 1977	7:00 p.m.
February 10, 1977	7:00 p.m.

BACKGROUND

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is being asked to renew its Community Development Block Grant to City of Romulus for another year. The primary objective of this program is "the development of viable urban communities, including decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income." The program consolidates several previous HUD programs, and is directed toward such objectives as:

- elimination of slums and blight.
- elimination of health, safety, and welfare hazards.
- conservation of housing.
- more housing.
- expansion and improvement of community services.
- a more rational utilization of land and other natural resources.
- reduction in isolation of income groups.
- restoration and preservation of historic properties.

To meet these objectives, certain activities are allowed. Some examples are:

- property acquisition.
- certain public works and facilities projects.
- rehabilitation project.
- preparing comprehensive community development plans.

Some activities are not allowed. For examples, facilities for which the funds cannot be used include:

- government offices (including courthouses).
- stadiums and sports arenas.
- schools.
- transportation depots.
- hospitals and nursing homes.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

Prior to submission of an application, the City is required by the Federal regulations governing this program to have:

- (1) "Provided citizens with adequate information concerning the amount of funds available..., the range of activities that may be undertaken, and other important program requirements."
- (2) "Held at least two public hearings..."
- (3) "Provided citizens an adequate opportunity to participate in the development of the application and in...any revisions, changes, or amendments."

However, "the citizen participation requirements...do not include concurrence by any person or group involved in the citizen participation process in making final determinations concerning the findings and contents of the application. The sole responsibility and authority to make such final determination rests exclusively with City of Romulus."

Each Public Hearing is to provide citizens with an opportunity to participate in the development of the application. An opportunity to propose revisions, changes, or amendments will be provided later when the application is formally presented to City Council.

AGENDA

1. Introduction (10 Minutes).
- a. Mention of Public Notice of Hearing.
- b. Introduction of Chairperson and City representatives.
2. City of Romulus presentation (30-45 minutes).
3. Questions and answers dealing with City's presentation.

Different from 1976

Tax changes led in law forms alteration

(This is the third in a series of articles offering advice on filing 1976 income tax returns, prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.)

The changes in the tax law brought about by the Tax Reform Act of 1976 have led to alterations in the tax forms themselves.

These are the changes that could spell trouble for the taxpayer who manages to find his way through the tax return filing process by using his returns from previous years as a guide, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs) said.

With the new information that is called for, the additional lines on the form, the revisions of supplemental forms and accompanying schedules, and the introduction of new tax tables, last year's return may not be as much help as it otherwise would have been.

The new tax tables are to be used by all taxpayers whose incomes do not exceed $20,000...

Old tax tables, in which you found out how much you owed, were based on adjusted gross income. They have been replaced with shorter tables, based on taxable income. The new tables are easy to use, but before you use them, you have to do some figuring not previously required in order to arrive at taxable income.

These consist of subtracting your deductions (itemized for standard) from your adjusted gross income, then multiplying the number of exemptions by $750 and subtracting that also.

The new tables are to be used by all taxpayers whose incomes do not exceed $20,000, whether they itemize or take the standard deduction.

To make room for additional lines on tax forms, questions asked in previous years about your country of residence (for revenue sharing) have been dropped.

The CPAs also point out that the so-called "standard" deduction is no longer as standard as it used to be. It now could be any of three amounts, depending upon your income level. Determining just what the amount is requires further arithmetic.

Finding your general tax credit formerly meant simply multiplying the number of your exemptions by $30. Now you multiply exemptions by $35, then take 2 percent of the first $9,000 of your income, up to $180, and see which is larger. That is your credit.

As always, the old advice about the way to eat an elephant (one bite at a time) still applies. Take the tax return form one line at a time and when you are puzzled consult the instructions for the line that is causing the trouble.

Also, the task will be made easier if you have at hand all your records for the year: paycheck stubs, W-2 forms, bank statements, canceled checks, receipts, contracts entered into, etc. And do not ignore last year's tax return entirely; it still will be of some help, especially when it comes to depreciation or other carry-overs that extend over more than one year.

The above materials should all be assembled whether you do your own tax preparation or entrust the task to someone else, and it's always more efficient to get these items together in advance rather than go running after them one by one as needed.

Unfortunately, IRS may have fewer people available than in the past to help what are expected to be more taxpayers than usual looking for assistance.

This means there are likely to be more returns than usual containing errors. To avoid them on your return, before mailing it go through it one last time, just double-checking the arithmetic.

The Michigan Association of CPAs reminds you that even professional tax advisers find this a worthwhile procedure, and if it works for them, how much more useful it must be for the individual preparing his own return.

Coldest winter puts stress on gas pipes

The state's coldest winter in more than 100 years not only is creating hardships for residents, it also is placing the gas distribution system of the Consumers Power Co. under an unusual strain due to the unprecedented depth of frost in the earth, according to J. P. Thomas, the firm's manager of the Western Wayne District.

"There has been much publicity about broken water mains this winter," Thomas added. "The gas distribution system is subjected to the same stress as the water systems and is suffering almost as much."

"Because of this unusual condition, Consumers Power is asking residents to report immediately any odor of gas or any unusual gaseous smell that they might detect in or around their homes. We have emergency crews ready 24 hours a day, seven days a week who will respond to such calls."

Telephone directories in communities served by the West Wayne District carry the number of Consumers Power to call in case of emergency, listed under Consumers Power Co.

Thomas added that residents' help in reporting the odor of gas is needed so that the source of leaking gas can be rapidly found and eliminated.

"Because gas may travel under frozen ground before coming to the surface, we ask that everyone report the odor of gas whether or not they have gas service in their own home," he continued. "Similarly, the extremely cold weather has put an extra burden on furnaces and increased the likelihood of carbon monoxide leaks."

Thomas explained that carbon monoxide is a byproduct of the incomplete combustion of natural gas.

"Its presence is difficult to detect because it is invisible, odorless and tasteless," he said.

The symptoms of the presence of carbon monoxide are moisture on windows, smarting of the eyes, dizziness, weakness, nausea, headaches and unconsciousness.

"Furnaces are working overtime at or near maximum capacity in these below-freezing temperatures," he said. "Although they are designed to safely vent all products of combustion up the chimney and to the atmosphere, leaks or other malfunctions in the furnace or venting system can cause carbon monoxide to find its way into the home and cause serious illness or death."

Thomas asked that residents who suspect the presence of carbon monoxide in their homes contact their heating dealer or Consumers Power Co. for emergency calls.

As a matter of practice, homeowners should have their space heating equipment inspected for safe operation on an annual basis, he added.

Task force pushes for emergency aid

A task force of community leaders and elected officials, proposed by Wayne County Commissioner Royce E. Smith (D-26th District), will be formed to press for emergency state and federal financial help for Wayne County.

In calling for the task force, the commissioner said "unprecedented" costs imposed upon the county have resulted from general social and economic conditions beyond its control, and therefore, the cost should be shared by the higher levels of government.

Smith cited a virtual doubling of the county's expenditures in the criminal justice field as the main cause of the county's financial problem. Criminal justice system costs have risen from $28.5 million to $52 million in the criminal justice field as the main cause of the county's financial problem. Criminal justice system costs have risen from $28.5 million to $52 million in the last six years.

"It is inequitable for the taxpayers of Wayne County alone to bear the full burden of cost increases resulting from general social and economic conditions," Smith said.

"County government never was intended to bear such monumental costs and is not structured to do so. These costs should be shared more fully by the state and federal governments, which have infinitely greater revenue sources than has the county."

Wayne County is expected to run a deficit of up to $12 million this year.

His proposal that a "blue ribbon" group be formed to lobby at the state and federal levels for assistance to the county was endorsed unanimously by the county Board of Commissioners.

Smith said local city and township officials are expected to be invited to serve on the task force.

The bulk of the additional costs have resulted from court orders pertaining to the county jail, plus increased court expenses aimed at coping with a sharp increase in the number of criminal court trials.

The county has spent millions of dollars to provide additional jail facilities as the result of a 720-prisoner limit imposed on the Wayne County Jail by a panel of three Circuit Court judges.

At Child Development Center

Battle begins of proposed penal facility

Western Wayne County Commissioners Mary Dumas and Royce E. Smith are working to defeat any attempt by the Michigan Department of Corrections to establish a correctional or penal facility on the grounds of the former Wayne County Child Development Center in Northville.

A joint resolution, sponsored by Mrs. Dumas of Livonia and Smith of Belleville, strongly opposes any prison facility on the county property. The resolution has been referred to the Public Works Committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners for immediate study.

The Dumas-Smith resolution also directs the committee to hold public hearings in the affected area to give local residents, businessmen and elected officials an opportunity to express their views.

The Michigan Department of Corrections has been reviewing the Wayne County Child Development Center property as the possible location of a penal correctional institution.

Both commissioners expressed grave concern for personal safety and adverse effects on property values and security, if a jail facility were established on the grounds.

"We are personally concerned about the well-being and peace of mind of the men, women and children of this family-oriented community," Mrs. Dumas said. "It is hard to believe that the state would even consider putting up another detention facility in a thriving residential area which already is bearing the responsibility and burden of one prison." She is referring to the Detroit House of Correction.

Smith said: "Western Wayne County is the fastest-growing area in the county. To suddenly inject another tax-absorbing, potentially dangerous jail facility here would create undue hardships on homeowners and businesses."

"Property values would drop. And new positive growth in the nearby vicinity would be stifled, if not crushed under this unwanted burden," he added.

Dumas and Smith pointed out that formal resolutions of opposition already have been adopted by the cities and the townships of Northville and Plymouth, the Northville and Plymouth Community Chambers of Commerce, and the Northville PTA Area Council.

"Residents are busy signing and circulating petitions opposing this hazardous situation," Dumas said.

"This is what we need and we urge everyone to support the petition drive."

The former child development complex with nearly 50 solid brick buildings, sprawls over 800 acres on either side of Sheldon Road south of Six Mile Road in Northville Township. Wayne County has been seeking an appropriate renter for the property since the child center was phased out in 1974.

"Of course, we're interested in utilizing the facilities — but not when it means a sell-out of the community," Smith said. "A jail facility would have a destructive influence on the current and future tax base of local governments and school districts."

Smith and Dumas have asked the Public Works Committee to review all other current proposals for alternate uses of the property which "would be more beneficial to the county and more acceptable to the adjacent communities".

Dumas said a prior "educational consortium plan", proposed by Schoolcraft College and Wayne State University, has been revived and deserves attention.

Commissioner Edgar L. Harris of Taylor, newly-appointed chairman of the Public Works Committee, now — without a formal proposal before us.

"In the meantime, I personally feel this resolution by Commissioners Smith and Dumas should be adopted as a policy resolution of the board."

Smith, a Democrat, represents District 27 and serves on the Public Works Committee. Mrs. Dumas, a Republican, represents District 19, and is a member of the board's General Government Committee.

'Of course, we're interested in utilizing the facility...'

Residents could get relief from excessive utility bills

Michigan residents who pay excessive amounts of their household income for utility bills would be eligible for tax relief under legislation to be introduced by State Rep. Gary Owen (D-22nd District).

"The people of Michigan are paying record amounts for utility service," Owen said. "They are shouldering a heavier and heavier financial burden to pay for heat, electricity and other services that are necessities."

"More and more of our household income is being gulped up by utility bills. The legislation I have introduced would ease the burden."

Owen noted that projections are that winters will continue to be colder and essential energy needs will rise in cost at a rapid rate. He also is working on a method that will reward energy conservation-minded people with higher rebates.

Owen will introduce bills which offer two approaches to relief for those who pay out great amounts of their income for utility service. One would incorporate utility relief into the existing property tax "circuit breaker" program, under which those who pay an excessive amount of income for property taxes are eligible for state income tax credits.

The plan would permit those paying more than 3.5 percent of income in combined property taxes and utilities to have 60 percent of their excess burden (that in excess of 3.5 percent) paid by the state in the form of tax credits. Qualifying senior citizens would be able to write off up to 100 percent of their excess burden.

Owen's second alternative would establish a separate "circuit breaker" program for utility costs. It would make anyone who pays more than 5 percent of household income eligible for the tax relief.

"Either alternative would provide a welcome relief for those citizens who are over-burdened by utility bills," Owen said. "The legislation is geared to low and middle income families, and particularly senior citizens who probably are suffering more than anyone because of the soaring costs of utilities. These people need help and I feel that this Legislature has a humane obligation to step in and help them."

According to figures obtained by Owen's office, the average total utility bills for electricity, gas and telephone service in Michigan is $880 a year. That does not include costs of water or heating oil.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PUBLIC HEARING MINUTES

JANUARY 20, 1977

The public hearing was called to order by Clerk Doreen Craven at 7:05 P.M. Board members present were Clerk Craven and Trustees Domen, Kelly and Maton. Absent were Supervisor Cullin, Treasurer York and Trustee Thetford. Also present were approximately 35 interested citizens.

Clerk Craven explained the purpose of the public hearing was to get from the residents, some input as to what to use the Community Development Block Grant for. She then introduced Mr. Joe DiDia, the Township Community Development Co-ordinator. He explained that with last year's grant (which was not used) and this year's grant we have $165,000., and also procedures of application thru Wayne County thru HUD. He listed a few of many uses the grant is eligible for, such as, acquisition of real property, restoration, health and recreational social services, senior citizens, lighting, parks, parking lots, fire equipment, public works, etc. Clerk Craven then opened the meeting to the public present.

RECREATION

Mr. Jeff Clark, Twp. Recreation & Park Director and Van Buren resident, submitted a request for a recreation center building that could be used for recreation programs and other community programs. The recreation program now, is mostly thru the schools but with the loss of millage, the need for a recreation center is greater. The developed site plan, as submitted, is to be on township property just west of the township hall, fits in with the township building development and tennis courts and is centrally located. The proposed building is a pre-'ab, redwood with cedar shingles. Cost is approximately $140,000.

Mrs. Lee Walls, of 800 Savage Rd., thanked the township for the past help in the baseball programs and requested funds to finish the ball fields and buildings on Beck Rd. The township is growing and that we have more boys than before.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Mr. Jack Frost, of DeWitt St., spoke in behalf of the senior citizens asking for grant funds to use as matching funds to purchase St. Paul's Lutheran Church where the hot lunch program is currently held and renovate the building to use also as a recreational and drop-in center for the senior citizens. He gave an example where a school building was purchased in Virginia and used for such a purpose.

Mr. Richard Collins of N. Shore Dr. spoke in favor of help for the senior citizens.

Ms. Mary Nichols, of 44035 S. Service Dr., Senior Citizens Co-ordinator, spoke in favor of the request for $15,000 to use as matching funds with Belleville for the purchase of St. Paul's Church and asked to reserve the right to let some more seniors speak later.

FIRE DEPT.

Mr. Elmer Memering, Chief of Fire Dept. No. 2 and township resident, asked for grant funds to purchase 2 pieces of fire equipment; a 1500 gallon truck and a tack pumper set up for rescue to use for small fires and as a lead truck. Cost of approximately $57,500 for both fully equipped.

No request for any other project was brought up. The hearing then was turned over for more discussion on the 3 requests submitted.

Mr. DiDia stated the money would be available around July, 1977.

Mr. Jeff Clark said the proposed recreation building could be used for seniors, also and wondered if seniors were committed to purchase of St. Paul's church. Ms. Nichols said no, but it was only site that was available to start hot lunch program.

Clerk Craven asked if location of church, being in the City, would pose a problem. DiDia stated it was possibly acceptable. Ms. Nichols stated it could be bought by joint commissions of Township and City or singly by the township. To date the seniors have not asked for help. They have taken care of expenses at the church. The church can give them a 60 day notice.

Mr. Price, of 9800 Hannan Rd., stated there is a parking problem at the church site and that the present township conference room intention was for use by seniors, plus other groups. Also that the building at the Beck Rd. ball park could be enlarged for use of multi purposes.

Mr. Komorami, of Haggerty Rd., stated seniors need a center for themselves and not parttime with young people and that the township has other grants available.

Mr. Cheyne, not a township resident but a senior citizen, said at least 50 seniors eat at the hot lunch center everyday. Van Buren has 1200 seniors and Belleville has 700.

Mr. De Francisco asked if township hall could be expanded so that we would not have to go along with the city. The seniors need a place for summer meetings when the schools are closed.

Clerk Craven drew the hearing to a close and said that all subjects will be taken under advisement and brought before the township board.

Respectfully submitted,
Doreen Craven, Township Clerk
Van Buren Township

VAN BUREN TOWNSHIP NOTICE OF ADOPTION OF AMENDMENTS TO THE UNIFORM TRAFFIC CODE

Township Clerk

Reject closing rumors

Four bow out of hospital board positions

While emphasizing that they know of no plan to close Wayne County General Hospital (WCGH), two county commissioners and two auditors on the county Board of Institutions have decided not to accept re-appointment to the hospital governing body.

The four stressed that they consider the hospital a much improved and well-run facility, despite contrasting rumors which they said needlessly disturb hospital personnel and the surrounding community.

The group said they are not seeking another term because of possible conflict of interest, and the fact that they have accomplished most of the objectives set for the hospital three years ago when county elected officials began replacing private citizens on the Board of Institutions.

In announcing their decision Jan. 31, the four, however, said they are continuing to serve until their successors are named. They added that their successors should not be county officials in other capacities.

The four are Samuel Turner of Detroit, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, William Suzore, vice-chairman of the General Government Committee, and Auditors Leonard Proctor and Richard Kelly.

Turner and Suzore's terms

Church to host movie

The Full Gospel Church of Belleville, located at 44649 Michigan Avenue, Canton Township, will show the gospel film, "A Stranger in My Forest," at 7:00 p.m. Sunday.

"It's a very moving and exciting film and people won't believe what's going to happen until the final 10 seconds of the movie," said Bill Lesner, church publicity person.

The public is invited to the service at the church which is located one-quarter mile east of Belleville Road.

No admission will be charged. Pastor Frank Howard can be contacted at 699-9909 for more information.

'It is now time for the elected officials to move on...'

expired Feb. 1, while Proctor's term ended Nov. 30, 1976 and Kelley's term, Nov. 30, 1977. A fifth seat on the Board of Institutions, for a term that also expired Feb. 1, already is vacant.

Under state statute, the Board of Commissioners is permitted to fill three seats on the Board of Institutions for 2-year terms, and the Auditors are allowed to appoint two seats for 3-year terms.

Turner pointed out the WCGH had lost its accreditation in 1973, and that county elected officials were first placed on the Board of Institutions shortly thereafter to help regain the accreditation as quickly as possible.

He noted that then the Board of Commissioners and hospital administrators were "polarized" and that even decisions of "minute detail" required clearance from the Commissioners.

The Commissioners also had authorized a study of the hospital by a private consulting firm which recommended changes requiring the utmost cooperation and expediency between hospital staff, the commissioners and auditors.

After months of study, the private consulting firm of Linton, Mields and Coston of Washington, D.C., made 16 recommendations in the areas of financing, staffing, training, administration and delivery of services.

Turner said that the Board of Institutions has implemented all but two of these recommendations, and that it is now time for elected officials to step aside in favor of appointments of private citizens as was the policy before.

Turner also proposed that membership of the Board of Institutions be increased from five to 10, and be organized to include more of a variety of educational, occupational and community interest.

Proctor said that the major task of the Board of Institutions under elected leadership was to regain accreditation, and that this has been accomplished.

"It is now time for the elected officials to move on," Proctor stated. He added that the hospital is "a fine institution, the best trauma hospital in the area," and that all efforts are oriented toward keeping the facility open, not closing it.

Kelly also praised the hospital, calling it a "good, viable institution," but added that its operation was hampered by political factors and its governing control should be returned to the outside community.

"I think that no member of the Board of Commissioners or the Board of Auditors should be on the Board of Institutions," Kelly added.

Lawsuit aimed at firms

The U. S. Department of Labor's regional solicitor has asked the Federal District Court in Michigan to issue a permanent injunction to stop alleged violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the federal wage-hour law.

In its complaint, the Labor Department named Woody's Clark Super 100 of 5858 S. Telegraph, Taylor, and Woody's Gas, 310 Main St. Belleville.

The complaint alleged violations of the overtime pay, minimum wage and record-keeping provisions of the act. The court was asked to award back pay, as found to be due, for distribution among the employees involved. No amounts were specified in the complaint.

Legal action followed an investigation of the business by the Labor Department's Wage-Hour Area Office, 231 W. Lafayette St. Detroit, under the supervision of Von Reynolds, area director.

"Personally, I feel it is a conflict of interest or immoral, if not illegal."

Both Suzore and Turner also expressed concern over conflict of interest. They agreed it was difficult to hear hospital financial problems as members of the Board of Institutions, then later as members of the Board of Commissioners have to assess these problems along with budget troubles affecting the entire county. Turner commended the other members of the Board of Institutions, and praised their accomplishments during the past three years, which he said included:

- Regaining hospital accreditation;
- Streamlining the accounting and ...its governing control should be returned to the outside community...

collection system, resulting in revenues of $45 million in 1976 up from a previous $24 million annually;

—Other reorganization that brought in an unexpected $8 million and prevented an overall county budget deficit in 1973; and yet lowering the annual county appropriation from 120 to under $8 million in 1975.

—Expansion of essential services,

In addition, said Turner, the outgoing Board of Institutions was highly praised by the national Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals following a 3-day survey in November.

Civil Service institutes new residency rule

All new employees of Wayne County through its Civil Service Commission now will be required to reside within Wayne County, instead of the previous allowable 5-county area.

The commission, which established the residency requirement effective Feb. 1, also tightened up that same rule for applicants for county jobs, by requiring that they be Wayne County residents for not less than six months before applying.

Previously the Civil Service rule stated only that applicants must be residents of Wayne County at the time they apply.

Joan Pettipren, chairman of the 3-member Civil Service Commission, said residency requirements were tightened to help alleviate the "extremely high unemployment situation which currently exists in Wayne County".

The new residency requirements do not apply to permanent employees already on the payroll, since it would not be equitable to change the terms of employment retroactively, she said.

In the past, applicants for most jobs were required to be county residents at the time they applied, but once hired were allowed to reside in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw or Monroe counties.

Mrs. Pettipren cited the language of the two resolutions by which the Civil Service Commission tightened the residency requirements in explaining the change.

The resolution requiring job applicants to have resided in Wayne County for at least six months at the time they apply, cites the jobless rate in the county. Unemployment currently stands at 11.4 percent in the county, including Detroit, compared with 8.9 percent for Michigan and 7.5 percent nationally.

The resolution states: "In view of the extremely high unemployment situation which currently exists in Wayne County, the commission feels that for the best interests of the county service increased efforts should be made to reserve Wayne County employment opportunities for persons who have been bona fide residents of said county for a significant period of time."

The resolution which restricts employees' residency to Wayne County cites the impact of unemployment on government tax receipts, stating: "Wayne County government and municipalities within the Wayne County are experiencing a financial crisis demanding that emergency measures be taken to minimize the number of county residents who are without income from which to support essential governmental services."

The two resolutions were adopted unanimously by the three Civil Service commissioners who, in addition to Mrs. Pettipren of Westland, are Henry R. Kozak of Detroit and Henry Majors of Belleville.

The Wayne County residency requirement applies to employees given regular appointments on a basis of open competitive exams from Feb. 1.

The rule becomes effective March 1 for persons given temporary provisional appointments or are re-employed or re-instated at their request after resigning a job.

The 6-month residency requirement for job applicants was effective Feb. 1.

The Civil Service Commission reserved its option to go beyond the boundaries of Wayne County to recruit applicants when recruitment efforts within the county have not produced a sufficient number of qualified applicants, Mrs. Pettipren pointed out.

Employees hired from outside the county will be required to move into Wayne County "within a reasonable period of time," the Civil Service Commission stated.

The Civil Service Commission also ruled that no provisional appointment, re-employment or re-instatement from resignation shall be approved unless the person has been a resident of Wayne County for at least six months immediately prior to the proposed date of employment.

This rule will be waived only when the commission decides immediate filling of a vacancy is necessary and no qualified Wayne County residents are available. In such cases, the appointee will be required to establish Wayne County residence "within a reasonable period of time." Wayne County currently has some 9,200 employees.

ranking Democrat on the Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education, and on the Agricultural Labor Subcommittee, which he chaired for four years.

Congressman Ford said he anticipates an active agenda for the Postsecondary Education Subcommittee in the coming year, including detailed studies of student financial aid programs, the paperwork burden for institutions receiving federal funds, and regulations needed to implement higher education laws.

In addition to the Education and Labor Committee, Congressman Ford also is a member of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. He is the Michigan Whip for the House Democrat Leadership, serves as vice-chairman of the Conference of Great Lakes Congressmen, and is a member of the Executive Board of the Democratic Study Group.

Other responsibilities include membership on the Advisory Committee of the White House Conference on Libraries, and on the Education Commission of the States' Task Force on Migrant Education.

In Romulus, Belleville

Three couples plan treks up the aisle

Wedding bells will be chiming soon for three young women, two from Romulus and one from Belleville, who are making plans for their pending marriages to local men. The nuptial rites are scheduled for February, April and July.

GUERIN - SORRELS

The engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Meri-de J. Guerin, to Steven J. Sorrels is announced by Mrs. Ernest Trescher of 37850 Herman, Romulus.

The daughter of Mrs. Trescher and the late Ralph E. Guerin, the bride-elect is a January, 1977 graduate of Romulus High School where she was vice-president of the Student Council. At present she is working at Bentley Gallery and Crafts of Belleville.

Her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Sorrels of 37012 Herman, Romulus, attended Romulus Schools and now is employed as a construction worker for Wayne county.

Calvary Baptist Church of Romulus has been reserved for the young couple's Feb. 19 wedding.

WILKERSON - WORDEN

Deborah Ann Wilkerson and Edward Paul Worden, both of Romulus, are engaged and making plans for their April 23 wedding.

Their engagement and nuptial date are announced by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wilkerson of 10100 Miriam, Romulus, parents of the bride-to-be who is a 1976 graduate of Romulus High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Worden of 9257 Tobine, Romulus, are parents of the prospective bridegroom who graduated from Romulus High School in 1972.

MICKUS - BOULTER

A July 22 altar date has been chosen by Leslie Ann Mickus of Belleville for her marriage to James Edwin Boulter of Wayne. The young couple will exchange wedding vows at St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Algird J. Mickus of 41854 Ecorse Rd., Belleville, are parents of the bride-elect who is currently employed at McDonald's on Rawsonville Road. She graduated from Belleville High School in 1976.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald G. Boulter Sr. of 36523 Thinbark, Wayne, the future bridegroom is a 1974 graduate of John Glenn High School. At the present time he is manager of the Wayne-Westland McDonald's.

ADK hears biology teacher

Fourteen members answered roll call when the Gamma Gamma Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa (ADK) met for its Feb. 2 meeting at Belleville High School. Hostesses were Marge Ford, Helen Stokes and Carolyn Gay.

Guest speaker was Richard Dokas, biology teacher at Belleville High School, who discussed plants, their diseases and the proper planting and repotting techniques.

The March meeting at the home of Dorothy Arthur will feature a silent auction.

Winter classes to start at 'Y'

The Ann Arbor YWCA has announced that the mid-winter session of classes will begin Feb. 14 and continue through April 9.

In-person registration has begun at the "Y" and ends Feb. 11. Hours for registration are 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 3:30 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The "Y" will be offering a number of new classes during this term. In the preschool department, ages 3 through kindergarten, offerings will include Disney World's "How Does It Work?", "Pee Wee Cooking 'Round the World" and "Puppet Tales."

The "Y" will again provide instruction for preschoolers in fitness, swimming and dance as well as painting and music in the informal education department.

The second term of Nursery Neighbors, a creative play experience for children ages four and five, will begin on Feb. 14. Nursery Neighbors meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings through June 17.

The youth informal education department will feature a number of new classes including Fairy Tale foods, All About Me, Nature's Treasures and Rhymes, Riddles and Such.

Soup to Nuts Workshops will provide instruction in Ukrainian Easter egg decorating, flower making and magic. The youth physical education department will offer classes in swimming, belly dancing, disco dancing, fencing, gymnastics, ping pong and weight lifting.

Adults will have the opportunity to study bobbin lace, calligraphy, creative writing, embroidery, Orienteering, Russian, vegetarian cooking and woodworking. Workshops will provide instruction in a wide range of culinary arts: favorite American pies; international Easter breads; Middle East desserts and sauces and pastas.

Adults interested in physical education classes may enroll in swimming or diving, synchronized swimming, ballet, disco dance, tap dance, judo, shiatsu, trampolines, yoga and fitness classes. Workshops will include Folk Dance For Fun;

Moving Your Way and Assault Prevention for Women.

Most classes require a "Y" membership to enroll. Further information may be obtained by calling 663-0536 or by picking up the class brochure at the "Y" facility at 350 South Fifth Avenue in Ann Arbor.

Quotes worth quoting...

"I like to see a man proud of the place in which he lives; and so live that the place will be proud of him."

Abraham Lincoln said it

Mail remembers 'the forgotten'

The small joy of receiving a Christmas card, a Valentine, birthday greeting, or a brief note from a friend is a tidbit that many of us experience regularly.

It is a small thing, but gives us a warm happiness that someone is thinking of us, cares enough about us to remember us at those special times of the year, or for no reason at all.

But there are those whose day is never brightened by such a greeting.

The "forgotten children" at the Plymouth Center for Human Development are residents that have no one to remember them on those special occasions.

Members of the congregation at Kirk of Our Savior Church in Westland last fall decided to "adopt" some of those children. The Mission Committee of the church launched a program at Christmas time to recruit persons who would take the responsibility of mailing greetings, cards and small gifts to residents of the home who have had no contact with the outside world for a year.

The committee was provided with a list of residents eligible for the "Forgotten Children" Program, which is encouraged by the administrators at the state facility.

Residents of Plymouth Center for Human Development are mentally impaired boys and girls, men and women of all ages. There are about 830 persons at the home.

The Mission Committee rounded up a number of sponsors for the residents, said Mary Lou Marsh, a committee member, but have decided to maintain the project on an on-going basis, expanding it to the community at-large.

Anyone who might be interested in sponsoring a resident at the home in this way can make the contact through Mrs. Marsh, at 721-2545. She will relay the name to state home administrators who are in charge of the program.

The home then sends the sponsor the name, age, weight, size and such information on the resident, including a description of his or her handicap or mental impairment. The letter describes to the prospective sponsor the nature of the program.

All that a sponsor need do from then on is remember his or her "adoptee" by sending greeting cards, birthday or holiday cards, or small gifts through the mail. No visitation is allowed, so all contact is through correspondence.

Many residents of the home already have sponsors, said a representative of the center, and some residents have two sponsors. Community response to the Forgotten Children Program is very good, he said, especially through church groups or clubs.

Square dance lessons set

If you have completed beginning square dance lessons and would like to practice what you have learned as well as continue to learn, intermediate level lessons are being offered.

Classes are held each Sunday from 8 to 10 p.m. at St. Aloysius Church on Ozga Road, corner Neville Street.

The caller is George Fritts and weekly admission for a lesson is $3

Valentine goodies from your kitchen

There seems to be a certain mystique about candymaking, and many of us, after an experience that was less than divine with divinity or other candies, restrict our confectionery activities to fudge.

So it may come as a surprise to learn that candies, like the jellies found in commercial assortments, are easy to make at home. These tender and clear gumdrop-type confections, such as Lemon Fruit-Jell Candy, are slightly softer and more transparent than the gumdrops you're used to buying. They make lovely gifts, particularly for Valentine's Day which is just a few days away.

The candy mixture made with liquid fruit pectin sets in a few hours after pouring and is then cut into squares or other shapes which can be rolled in granulated or confectioners sugar. Or you can go fancy and roll them in cookie coconut or dip them in melted semi-sweet chocolate squares.

If you prefer to use the powdered fruit pectin, try the recipe for Orange Fruit-Jell Candy. It's just as easy, and can also be prepared in the same delicious variations.

Lemon Fruit-Jell Candy

1 bottle (6 fl. oz.) liquid fruit pectin
2 tablespoons water
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
2 teaspoons lemon extract*
10 drops yellow food coloring*
Granulated sugar
* Or use one of the flavoring and coloring variations that follow.

Combine fruit pectin and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Stir in baking soda. (Mixture will foam slightly.) Mix 1 cup sugar and corn syrup in another saucepan. Place both saucepans over highest heat. Cook both mixtures, stirring alternately, until foam has disappeared from fruit pectin mixture and sugar mixture is boiling rapidly—3 to 5 minutes.

Pour fruit pectin mixture in a slow steady stream into boiling sugar mixture, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute longer. Remove from heat. Stir in extract and coloring. Pour immediately into buttered 9x5-inch loaf pan. Let stand at room temperature until cool and firm—about 3 hours or overnight. Invert pan onto wax paper, which has been sprinkled with sugar. Cut into 3/4-inch squares and roll in sugar. Allow candy to stand for a while; then roll in sugar again to prevent stickiness. Makes about 1 pound or 5 dozen candies.

Note: If these candies are to be stored or packaged, let stand overnight, uncovered, at room temperature before packaging or storing, to prevent weeping.

Fruit Jell Candy Variations

Orange Nut Fruit-Jells. Use yellow and red food coloring and 1-1/2 teaspoons orange extract. Add 1 teaspoon grated orange rind and 1/2 cup chopped walnuts to the cooked fruit pectin sugar mixture. Roll the candies in confectioners sugar.

Chocolate-Coated Fruit-Jells. Make any desired flavor of Fruit-Jell Candy. Cut in 1/2- to 3/4-inch squares and dip in melted semi-sweet chocolate squares. For best results in dipping, have room temperature between 60 degrees and 70 degrees. Heat 2 packages (16 squares) semi-sweet chocolate squares over hot water and stir rapidly until entirely melted. When chocolate feels cool to the touch (or when cooled to a temperature of 83 degrees), dip candies quickly in chocolate; then place on wax paper to harden.

Ginger Fruit-Jells. Add 1/2 cup (1/4 pound) finely chopped candied ginger and 1 tablespoon lemon juice to the cooked fruit pectin sugar mixture instead of lemon or orange extract and colorings. Roll the candies in granulated sugar, or dip in melted semi-sweet chocolate squares, following directions for Chocolate-coated Fruit-Jells.

Crema de Menthe Candy. Increase boiling time of fruit pectin sugar mixture from 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in 1/4 cup crema de menthe liqueur instead of lemon or orange extract. Tint with green food coloring, if desired.

Coconut Fruit-Jells. Make any desired flavor of Fruit-Jells Candy. Instead of rolling candies in sugar, roll in 1-1/2 cups cookie coconut. These candies may be rolled in coconut either immediately after cutting, or after standing overnight.

Cinnamon Fruit-Jells. Use 15 drops red food coloring and 4 drops oil of cinnamon. Roll in granulated sugar.

Peppermint Fruit-Jells. Use 10 drops green food coloring and 1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract. Roll in granulated sugar.

A note to Food Editors: The above variations can be used with both the liquid and powdered fruit pectin recipes.

Orange Fruit-Jell Candy

1 box (1-3/4 oz.) Sure-Jell Fruit Pectin
3/4 cup water
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1-1/2 to 2 teaspoons orange extract*
Red and Yellow food coloring*

* Or use one of the flavoring and coloring variations above.

Mix fruit pectin, water, and baking soda in 2-quart saucepan. (Mixture will foam slightly.) Mix sugar and corn syrup in another saucepan. Place both saucepans over high heat. Cook both mixtures, stirring alternately, until foam has thinned from fruit pectin mixture, and sugar mixture is boiling rapidly—about 5 minutes.

Pour fruit pectin mixture in a slow steady stream into boiling sugar mixture, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute longer. Remove from heat. Stir in extract and red and yellow food coloring to tint orange. Pour immediately into a buttered 9x5-inch loaf pan. Let stand at room temperature until cool and firm—about 3 hours or overnight. Invert pan onto wax paper, which has been sprinkled with sugar. Cut candy into 3/4-inch squares with spatula dipped in warm water and roll in sugar. Allow candy to stand a while, roll in sugar again to prevent stickiness. Makes about 1 pound or 5 dozen candies.

Note: If these candies are to be stored or packaged, let stand overnight, uncovered, at room temperature before packaging or storing, to prevent weeping.

Homemade for your Valentine

All dressed up and ready for your Valentine gift-giving are these many variations of Fruit-Jell Candies. Easy to make at home with either liquid or powdered fruit pectin, these elegant confections look especially fancy packed in small fluted cups available at many paper goods stores. WIC offers food to poor

Up to 3,000 additional people could have an extra $25 worth of essential food items each month simply by calling for an appointment at one of five Wayne County Health Department locations to seek certification for the WIC Program. The health department recently was funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, to bring WIC (Women, Infants and Children Supplemental Food Program) to 5,000 out-county, low-income residents who qualify either through nutritional or medical risk factors.

WIC seeks to supplement the diets of women during pregnancy and for six months postpartum, and infants and children through age 4 1/2. Books of coupons are distributed monthly which can be used at WIC-approved stores in Wayne County to purchase formula, milk, eggs, cheese, juice and cereal. These approved stores are both chain and independent stores located in communities all across the out-county area.

Individuals may seek certification by either a public health nurse or nutritionist at any one of five locations in the county by appointment only. The five sites are:

(1) Residents of Inkster and upper half of Romulus (above I-94) should call the Inkster Prescadd Clinic at 563-1133.

(2) Residents of Ecorse and River Rouge only should call the Downriver Prescadd at 849-1156.

(3) Residents of Sumpter, Van Buren, Huron townships and lower half of Romulus (below I-94) should call the Sumpter Prescadd Clinic at 697-9455 or 467-6711.

(4) Residents of out-county area below Michigan Avenue (except in areas listed above) should call the South Health Center at 287-2400.

(5) Residents of out-county areas above Michigan Avenue (except as listed elsewhere) including Garden City, Westland, Wayne, Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Redford, Livonia, Dearborn and Dearborn Heights should call the Wayne County Department of Health at 274-2800, ext. 234.

Rose Ann Bazzell, Tom Oliver, NG's, installed by Rebekah, Galaxy Lodges

Astral Rebekah Lodge No. 250 and Galaxy Lodge No. 384 held a joint public installation Jan. 22 at the IOOF Hall in Belleville with a record breaking attendance from all over the state.

Earl Gray, captain and his District No. 7 staff handled the installation and exhibition of drills.

Still others were Martha Morton, musician; Juanita Akers, warden; Shirley Cooper, conductor; Myrtle Goble, chaplain; Lucille Reinhackel, Jr. Past Noble Grand; Lois Zilka, inside guardian; Cora Bradshaw, outside guardian; Evelyn Arnold, recording secretary; Harriet Walters, financial secretary; Betty Mida, treasurer, and Caroline Sherwood, lodge deputy.

Others were Dave Cooper, chaplain; Conrad Shevrovick, inside guardian; Phil Petri, outside guardian; Ray Mida recording secretary; Frank Reinhackel, financial secretary; Herbert Mida, treasurer; Bill Moser, Jr. Past Noble Grand, and Dave Cooper, lodge deputy.

Music was played by Esther Jacobs and sung by Eddie Becksteine. The collar bearers, Darlene Bazzell and Shannon Hrbal, who were dressed in pretty long gowns, received a gift from the Lodges for a job well done.

Lucille Reinhackel, Jr. Past Noble Grand, received a gift from her officers and Past Grand Jewel from her husband, Frank. A gift also was presented to Earl Gray and his District No. 7 staff.

The evening concluded with lunch, accordion music by Helen Patke, PNG; square dancing and a sing-along with Frances Gorney at the piano.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM C. JAYSKA JR.

Jayska-Baron nuptials read

Canton Township is the home of newly married residents Kathleen Ann (Baron) and William C. Jayska Jr.

The couple were wed recently at the Riverside Park Church of God in Livonia, the ceremony witnessed by 200 relatives and guests.

The bride is the daughter of Lorraine Baron of Canton and Lawrence Baron of Belleville. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Jayska Sr. of Westland.

Daisies and mums graced the church where The Rev. Julius E. Ewald joined the pair in a double-ring ceremony.

Walking down the aisle on her father's arm, the bride wore a white organza gown, with a lace overlay trimmed in pearls. A waist length chapel veil and train completed the bridal outfit, the veil attached to a headpiece decorated with pearls and lace.

The former Miss Baron carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

The bride's attendants were matron of honor Peggy Allen of Westland, and bridesmaids Cindy Fyfe of Westland and Cindy Baron, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Allen's gown was a pink crepe with long sleeves and lace trim. She wore a matching pale pink picture hat, and carried a bouquet of white daisy mums and baby's breath, tied with a pink ribbon laced through the flowers.

A similar style dress in orange, with apricot picture hat, was worn by Miss Fyfe. Her bouquet contained matching orange ribbon. Junior Bridesmaid Miss Baron chose a gown of yellow crepe. She carried a bouquet similar, but smaller, than the other attendants.

Wedding music performed by organist Opal Fox and soloist Carolyn White included the "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer."

The groom's best man was Jim Cloar of Westland, while William Davidson of Canton and John Fyfe of Westland acted as ushers. Ring bearer was Rick Wilcox of Garden City.

The mothers of both bride and groom wore double carnation corsages in yellow, with baby's breath. Mrs. Baron, the bride's mother, chose a mint green crepe gown with matching cape, while the groom's mother wore a lime green gown with shoulder cape.

A reception at the church hall for 175 guests followed the ceremony.

The bride and groom are both 1975 graduates of John Glenn High School in Westland. Jayska is employed by Total Leonard Inc.

Second son born at Elgin AFB

Lt. and Mrs. Orren M. Walters are announcing the newest addition to their family — an eight-pound baby boy who was born Jan. 7 at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida.

Shawn Nicholas was welcomed home by his big brother, 3-year-old Matthew Scott.

The boys' mother, the former Johanne Cash, is the daughter of Nancy Cash of West Columbia Avenue, Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Lester O. Walters of Edgedale Drive, Belleville, are the paternal grandparents.

Reflections

'Little kids' goal — 'big seats'

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Remember when you were little — how you looked up to and admired the "older kids?" I particularly recall that term from elementary school days when we were segregated into "little kid" and "big kid" categories; especially so on the school bus.

Now if you were a city kid and never got to ride with dozens of your schoolmates day after day, you missed out on half the fun of growing up.

When I first became a passenger on the old red, white and blue Ford products, there were two types of seats — the "big seats" which ran the length of the bus, one on each side and one for girls, the other for boys — and the "little seats." The mini-benches were stationed crosswise down the center and really were designed as 2-seaters. But, even back then, there were more kids than seats so we cozied up in snug little threesomes — flinching at every mile of the togetherness.

But there was always the reprieve — the chance to break away since we were allowed to move up to the "big seats" each time one of the older kids disembarked. The catch was — being BIG enough to move on up. Age had little to do with it — it depended on size (and the old pecking system.) That was one time I definitely enjoyed being the accepted size for my age — average. But, oh, those poor little runts who tended to be "late starters" — they were always the last to be allowed into the upper chambers, mainly because they WERE too small.

I soon came to realize that we were involved in some kind of game knowing now it was form of "politics."

You see, we had bus "officers" for whom we voted each year. Each vehicle's passengers comprised the election rolls and we got to vote for our favorite "big kid" who, naturally, had to be in senior high to be eligible. Lest I forget, at that time all grades, kindergarten through 12, rode the same bus at the same time — no split shifts or separate runs.

But everyone had a vote and being elected to one of the three posts was definitely a sign of status and, we all knew, popularity. We were supposed to pick officers from different spots on the route so that there would always be someone in command. Needless to say, that didn't always work out. The best looking and leggiest big guys usually won the top posts while the prettiest big girl got to be secretary. That entailed taking the roll each day and turning it into the superintendent's office.

The head honcho had the upper hand, his two cohorts taking over when he was missing or when he got off at his stop. Rules were very definitely spelled out and we were reported to "the office" if we got out of line. Taboos included standing or moving around while the bus was in motion; yelling, screaming or singing which would disturb the bus driver; littering; fighting (the death penalty for this one) and — eating!

Now I must admit that none of the rules really bothered me except the last one. After six hours of the 3-R's, the long, bouncy ride home helped dispatch hunger S.O.S.'s from my tummy. But since I always managed to vacuum every bit of my lunch, there wasn't even a stale crust to sneak.

Then one day my third grade buddy, De Ette, opened her lunch box and revealed an aromatic golden collage — the peelings from her noonday orange! Being a very gutsy and famished 8-year-old, she decided to test the sentry's euphoria (Big Roy was looking longingly at Big Betty) and run the risk of nibbling an orange peel. She very generously allowed me to play the game with her. Delicious! Delicious!

But, alas — with the first furtive bite, the Sunkist scent telegraphed its way to the other kids around us who turned in disbelief — muted disbelief, I might add. Except, of course, for the snitch in the crowd and for that we could always depend on good old Lamar.

Lamar wasn't exactly a top favorite with his contemporaries, though, and had an even lower rating with the hierarchy. They just never seemed to believe his outrageous cries that we were eating ORANGE PEEL!

The minute Lamar called attention to himself, he always received the order, "For crying" out loud, wipe your nose, Lamar." I often suspect that someone on our bus created the ad and used Lamar as the inspiration for the post-nasal drip commercial.

Lamar, whose constant runny nose didn't help matters, was one of those undersized kids I mentioned earlier. He was always screaming, "But I'm older", as one of his heftier underclassman shot up to fill a space vacated by one of the big boys. Despite his tiny stature, he was never quite fast enough to beat the shrewd "little kids."

Of course, there was the whole underhanded scheme of keeping Lamar FROM moving "up." It was almost like an intricate football play where everyone knows where he's supposed to be at a given time. Those fellas merely "blocked" whenever Lamar tried for his first down (up?)

On the girls' side there wasn't that problem. But "looks and winning ways" were definitely an asset when it came to hitting the big time. We little girls were not without our wiles. We all had our favorite "big girl" in the big seats and we played the game — knowing that our rise in the world depended on her liking us better than Carolyn or Donna Belle or Shirley.

It's funny that we all worked so hard to achieve our respective elevations since those big seats really weren't all that great. Our feet never touched the floor, we had a hard time keeping from sliding off and we couldn't even see out the windows.

It's been many moons since I've thought back to Bus Number Six and that wonderful glow that came while sitting there with the "big girls." The recall tho is surprisingly clear and sad and funny at the same time.

It makes me wonder if De Ette grew to hate oranges as much as I did. And, too, — do you suppose little of Lamar ever discovered Drisan?

SEEK OUT A PROFESSIONAL!

"It is a truism in the legal profession that the vast majority of widows lose a substantial part of an uncontrolled bequest within seven years." So states Ms. Theresa Morse in her book, "Life is for the Living."

She points out that a team of experts (a lawyer, accountant, and investment counselor) can provide the professional advice that well-meaning friends and relatives simply cannot. All of us may need some or all of that "team". Ms. Morse counsels a widow, especially, to seek out a lawyer with whom she can communicate frankly and comfortably. He must be "right" for her, and he and the other counselors must earn her confidence and trust. Only through this trust can they help chart her short and long-range courses of action.

So, too, must we earn your trust. You should be comfortable discussing your funeral wishes with us. As with your lawyer, we conduct our affairs on a professional level. We want you to consider us as members of your "team," ready to help make pre-planned arrangements or provide information in advance of need.

He's Donald

Duane Ross, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Goldsby Ross of Inkster, rehearses a scene from the weekend production of Eugene Johnson's play "The Idea of Ancestry". In the black drama, which will premiere Saturday at Quirk Auditorium on the Eastern Michigan University campus, Ross plays Donald, a 22-year-old high school drop-out who always is ready to fight. He is one of Bird's four children, whom she struggles to raise in the face of many problems rising out of the black experience.

'The Magic Flute' will close out sixth MOT opera season

Mozart's last and unquestioned masterpiece of "The Magic Flute" will be the sixth season of the Michigan Opera Theatre's (MOT) opera in English at the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts.

The production will open Friday, with performances slated for Sunday, next Wednesday and Feb. 18-19.

According to general director David DiChiera, MOT's production will be "startlingly original in its conception, and radically new in every detail".

DiChiera has engaged the team of Rhoda Levine (stage director) and designer Robert Israel, a native Detroit, whose previous collaborations for the Netherlands Opera and the Brussels Opera have earned them international recognition and acclaim.

A new translation has been created for MOT's production with lyrics by Randolph Mauldin and dialogue by Yael Gani. Mauldin conducted MOT's recent — and highly successful "Naughty Marietta", and Ms. Gani provided translation revisions for Music Hall Center's production of "Seven Deadly Sins." The new translation, according to the duo, "reveals the humanity of the characters in the opera, and gives a contemporary and hopefully timeless meaning to a masterpiece of the past".

John Covelli, music director of the Flint Symphony, will make his MOT conducting debut. Covelli has been assistant conductor of the New York City Opera and music director of the Florentine Opera of Milwaukee.

The role of Pamina will be performed by soprano Kathleen Battle whose recent New York City Opera debut was hailed as "one of the best seen and heard in either major New York opera houses in many seasons". Miss Battle made her MOT debut as Rosina in last season's "Barber of Seville".

Others in the cast are first place Grinnell audition winner Keum Ja Kim, Gordon Finlay, Christopher Deane and Ronald Raines.

Mr. and Mrs. Avern Cohn will host the opening night Afterglow in the theater. The afterglow is open to the public. Reservations, at $10 per person, can be made by calling 963-3717.

At the close of the Detroit performances, the production of "The Magic Flute" will travel to Flint for a performance on Feb. 24 with the Flint Symphony at Whiting Auditorium, and beginning Feb. 28, it will be the full length opera to be presented in eight Michigan cities as part of MOT's annual spring Opera in Residence tour of the state.

The production of "The Magic Flute" and the Opera in Residence program are supported by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Alma College show emphasizes music of Scottish past

The Kiltie Band, A Cappella Choir, and the Kiltie Lassies Scottish dancers and pipers will present "Alma College In Concert", a musical production for the entire family, at Detroit's Ford Auditorium at 8 p.m. March 4.

Alma's Kiltie Band, one of the state's most colorful marching organizations and dancing Kiltie Lassies and Pipers reflect Alma College's Scottish heritage.

The Alma Choir has established a reputation for excellence with programs that typically include a wealth of great choral literatures from the Renaissance to the present day. Its annual tours have taken the group throughout the United States and Europe. Members recently participated in a study-performance tour of Romania.

Dr. Ernest G. Sullivan, chairman of the Music Department, directs the A Capella Choir. Dr. Sullivan has been a member of the voice faculty at the Chicago Conservatory of Music and has sung professionally in Chicago and the Midwest.

Dr. Jack W. Bowman directs the band and is the advisor of the Kiltie Lassies and Pipers. He is conductor of the Alma Symphony, principal clarinetist with the Saginaw Symphony Orchestra, and organist-choirmaster at the First Presbyterian Church of Alma.

Tickets for "Alma College In Concert" are available at the Ford Auditorium box office and at Presbyterian churches throughout the Detroit metropolitan area and southeastern Michigan. They also will be available at the door.

Prices are $3 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Black drama, 'Ancestry,' premieres on EMU campus

"The 'Idea of Ancestry' could quite possibly pick up where 'Roots' leaves off," said Eastern Michigan University (EMU) director Tommye Myrick.

Ms. Myrick is talking about the black drama she's directing, which traces the trials and tribulations of a black family struggling to survive. An original drama by Detroit playwright Eugene Johnson, it will be presented Saturday and Sunday Feb. 9-12, at 8 p.m. in EMU's Quirk Auditorium.

The drama will make its debut at EMU and will mark the first time a black drama ever has been produced on the main stage at Quirk.

"The play has nothing at all to do with our black heritage," the 23-year-old director said. "It has to do with ideas of the past. Basically, I think the playwright named the play 'The Idea of Ancestry' for the benefit of Bird — the main character — because she is the one who lives in the past."

According to Ms. Myrick, living in the past is an escape mechanism for Bird, who is the divorced mother of four children and is forced to raise them alone. In fact, the production even employs the use of a scrim behind which a younger Bird acts out her living-in-the-past fantasies, which include romantic interludes with her former husband.

The young EMU director has attended Loyola, Louisiana State and Xavier universities, receiving her bachelor's degree from the latter in 1973. She has earned her master's and currently is working on her doctorate degree at the University of Michigan. She teaches introduction to the black theatre and creative problems in black theatre at EMU.

Ms. Myrick has set the 1976 play in the early 1970s, but said it could be set 20 years from now. Seven of the cast of 10 are members of the same family, including Donald, a 22-year-old high school dropout; Harvey, 21, who is college-bound and is the "most-likely-to-succeed" in the family; Nora, the 18-year-old daughter who doesn't work, and Kevin, 14, the youngest member of the family, who wants to become a basketball star, but is too short. All are Bird's children and none work, leaving the responsibilities of breadwinner to Bird.

Ms. Myrick said the main difference between "black" drama and its white counterpart is the subject matter and the intensity with which it is dealt. Black drama cannot be written by a white playwright for black actors; it must be by a black with black actors in order to truly portray the black experience.

"There is a distinct rhythmic pattern that is uniquely black," Ms. Myrick added.

"The Idea of Ancestry" and Phillip Dean's "Sty of the Blind Pig" are the only two black plays in which "blackness" never is mentioned, she said. Neither play exaggerates the capabilities of the black man by minimizing those of the white man. Neither, in fact, deals with the "white man" at all.

"These two plays are saying that before you can say 'Look at what this white man is doing to me', you've got to look yourself and say 'Look at what we are doing to ourselves'. And once you get your family unity together, you can go out and try to deal with the negative forces that try to hold you down," she continued.

The drama is Johnson's first play and Ms. Myrick has found it necessary to adapt some scenes and lines in her production. But Johnson, 25, the University of Detroit graduate who founded Detroit's Paul Robeson Players, is not far removed from the scene; he drops in during rehearsals from time to time to see how his premiere is going. For more information, call the Quirk Box Office at 487-1221.

Organist Muri to present 'Valentine Greetings' show

The Henry Ford Museum of Dearborn has added an extra concert to its theater calendar with the scheduling of a special performance by organ virtuoso John Muri at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Entitled "Valentine Greetings", the 90-minute concert at the console of the theater's organ will recall the days when the only sound accompanying motion pictures came from just such an instrument.

A professional organist since 1924, Muri has performed on record and in person throughout the country. In the 1930s he served as musical director of radio stations WWAE and WIND in the Chicago area. In 1937, he joined the staff of the Hammond (Indiana) Public Schools where he taught for 31 years, all the while devoting his spare time to playing organ for special events at the Hammond Civic Center.

In recent years, a revival of interest in theater organ has kept Muri on the concert circuit throughout the United States and Canada. A devotee of antiques, he collects motion picture films and song-slides of the early 1900s, as well as movie and slide projection equipment, telephones and phonographs.

For his engagement at the museum, Muri has prepared a special Valentine program. Much of his concert will be devoted to songs written by Detroit composer Richard Whiting, including "Beyond the Blue Horizon" and "Hooray for Hollywood." Using the music, slides and some opportunities for singing, he will demonstrate how famous couples — Antony and Cleopatra, Romeo and Juliet — might have responded to Valentines. He'll finish off by accompanying two silent films — "Inspiration," a fantasy, and "Mary's Little Lamb," a cartoon.

The Henry Ford Museum theater organ, installed in mid-1974, was custom made and voiced for the 600-seat theater by Rodgers Organ. It features a unique combination of stops and special sound effects carefully planned for the accompaniment of silent movies.

There is no additional charge for Muri's performance beyond the regular museum admission.

Perkins Cake & Steak

One of the newest additions to the family of round-the-clock restaurants in Westland is a comfortable, friendly spot at 501 South Wayne Road called Perkins Cake & Steak House which just marked its sixth month anniversary.

The first impression we got on entering was one of a bright, clean, uncluttered dining room with comfortable, wide booths in vivid blue — the dominant shade in the blue-green decorative scheme.

Our waitress, Cindy, greeted us with a tray of coffee cups and pot of fresh brew as she handed us our large, glossy menus. Entrees were conveniently categorized under five heads: Gourmet Pancakes, Waffles, Eggs and Omelettes, Steaks and Dinners and Sandwiches. Dinners, which included rolls and butter, salad and choice of potato ranged from a reasonable $2.25 to $5.95.

As always, our choices ran in three different directions and included char-broiled New York strip steak, pork chops and deep-fried shrimp. All came piping hot and attractively garnished with a curled orange slice and sprig of parsley. Baked potatoes were dusted with paprika and accompanied by sour cream and butter. My hash browns arrived hot, cooked to just the right consistency with a golden crustiness to both sides. Delicious! The loin-cut chops, set atop toast points, came with a generous cup of applesauce; the steak with a blanket of sliced mushrooms.

Commencing with the salad bar, we found bowls and plates nicely chilled. (Is there anything less appealing than salad dishes just out of a hot dishwasher?) There were a half dozen goodies with which to accessorize our mixed salad green, four dressings to ladle on and wells of baked beans, marinated cucumbers, four-bean salad and cole slaw to whet our appetites.

Oversized dinner rolls, reminiscent of popovers, were also at the counter along with little cups of whipped butter — just soft enough for easy spreading.

Listed as Perkins famous "bottomless cup", the coffee was still priced at 30 cents. While we waited for our dessert — raspberry roll-ups, a delicate filled French pancake accented with whipped cream, (which we shared) — we studied the menu more closely.

On the back we discovered a special listing for the younger set called Perkins Kid's Corner. The enticingly titled entrees, geared for smaller appetites, included "Little Cowpoke," "Lickety-Chick," "Fancy Pants" and "Little Shaver Special." There were six in all for the young 'uns to choose, each served with milk or pop, at a nominal price of from $1.30 to $1.70. A special children's menu, which helps make kids feel important, was one of the things we always appreciated when our trio was still in the "hangaburger" stage.

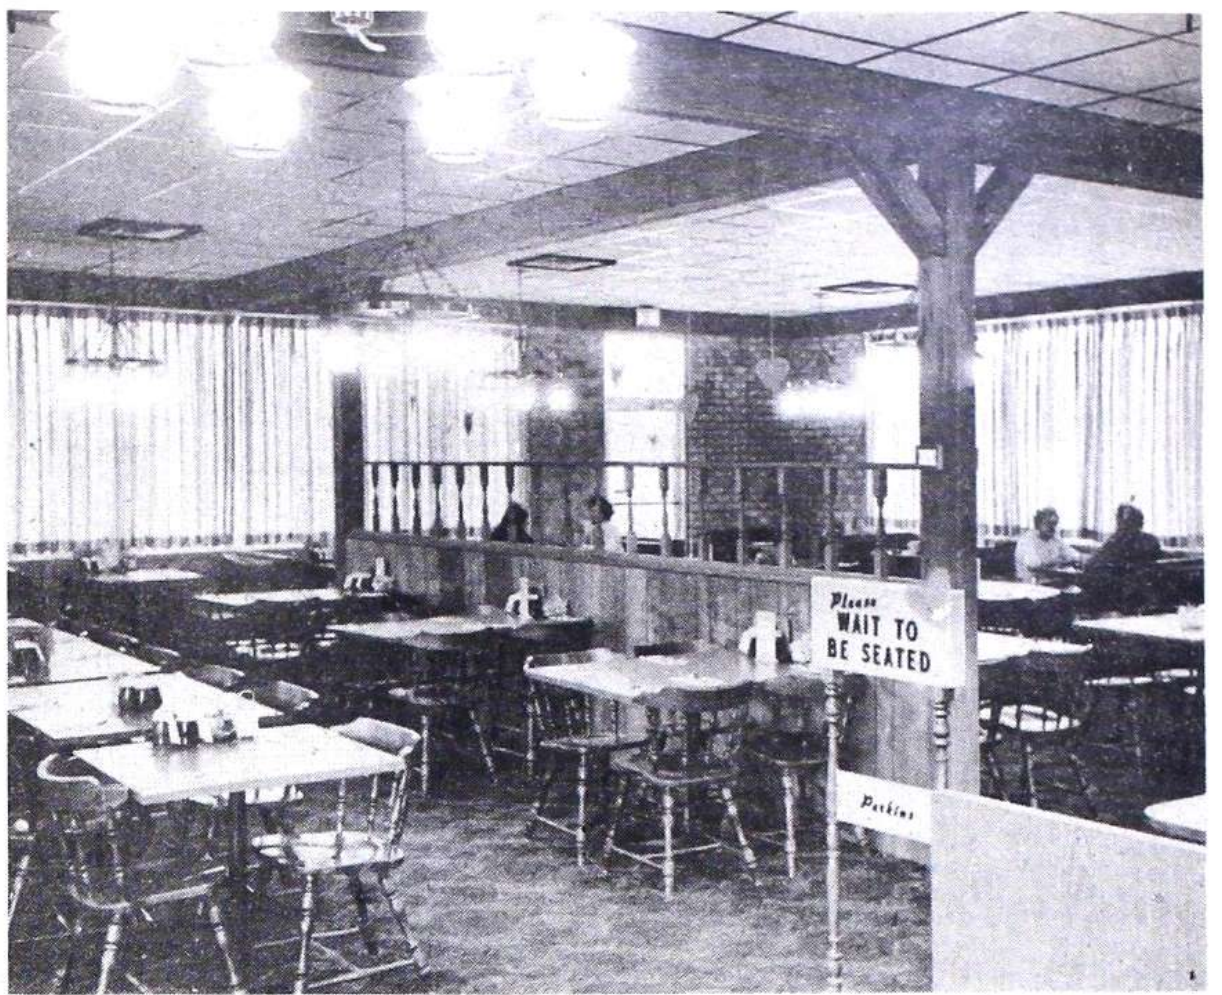

A placard on the table announced SSP or SSB Luncheon Specials — soup, sandwich and pie or soup, sandwich and beverage — all for a mere $1.99. Served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, the special offers hearty, robust soup of the day and a choice of roast beef, hamburger, corned beef or ham sandwich.

Breakfast specials, starting at 95 cents, can be ordered from 7 to 11 a.m. during the week. And there's a daily attraction at a most appealing price — last Wednesday's being spaghetti with tossed salad and country toast at $1.39.

Nick Moran, who is owner-manager of Perkins, runs a 24-hour business; one of seven in the Michigan chain and one of some 248 in the nation — all mostly east of the Mississippi. Before opening his place Nick attended management school at the franchise headquarters in Edina, Minn.

Sometime in the next three weeks, he said, he will be going to the national menu which will include an 8-ounce boneless prime rib, a fisherman's platter and barbecued ribs.

Whatever your capacity when it comes to food, Perkins can meet any order from the special "Calorie Counter" offerings right through the mansized full-course dinners.

Jasper Johns, Robert Rauschenberg, Frank Stella, Andy Warhol all are artists of the 1960s who are included in Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum's intensive Sunday afternoon film series "Art of the Sixties — Three Views."

At 2:30 p.m. on three Sundays in the Academy Museum, 500 Lone Pine Road, the artistic tendencies of the explosive, revolutionary '60s will be explored through six documentary films followed by detailed, slide-lectured analyses by guest art historians.

The film-lectures Sunday will be two films "The New Abstraction; Frank Stella and Larry Poons" and "Morris Louis and Kenneth Noland; The New Abstraction," followed with explanation by art historian Matthew Rohn.

On Feb. 20, "Andy Warhol" with art historian Michael Marlais will be presented, and Feb. 27, "Christo: Four Works in Progress" and "Christo's Valley Curtain" with art historian Barbara Tannenbaum will be offered.

Series tickets are $11 for general public, $9 for students and senior citizens and $7 for museum members. Single tickets are $3 for general public, $2.50 for students and senior citizens and $2 for museum members. Tickets will be sold at the door. To reserve tickets, call, museum at 645-3315.

Cranbrook Academy of Art is a division of Cranbrook Educational Community, which also includes Cranbrook Institute of Science and Cranbrook Schools.

'P.D.Q. Bach' set for its appearance with DSO Feb. 25

An evening of musical madness is set for Feb. 25, when the Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) presents Professor Peter Schickele and "P.D.Q. Bach".

The 8:30 p.m. concert in Ford Auditorium is to benefit the DSO Pension-Maintenance fund.

Schickele has been called "the most original and satisfying expert at music parody around these days" by Life Magazine, and the New York Times says: "An evening with P.D.Q. Bach is a very, very funny show, even for people who like music but don't know why".

"P.D.Q. Bach" and Schickele were last presented by the DSO in 1973.

Prof. Schickele is the world's leading—in fact, the world's only—authority on the life and works of P.D.Q. Bach, the "justly neglected" member of the Bach family whose life, according to the professor, spanned the years from 1807 to 1742.

This year's program will feature a group of P.D.Q. Bach masterpieces never before performed in Detroit, ranging in ridiculousness from the opening "Desecration of the House" Overture to the concluding Concerto for Bassoon versus Orchestra (Break allegro, Not so fast, Rondo alla turky lurkey)... Other offerings will include the unknown "Hindenburg" Concerto, Canine Cantata: "Wachet Arf!" (Sleeping Dogs Awake!), and Echo Sonata for Two Unfriendly Groups of Instruments.

Tickets for the DSO with P.D.Q. Bach, priced at $7, $5, and $3, are on sale now at Ford Auditorium Box Office.

Students perform '6 Rms'

Students attending Schoolcraft College are putting the finishing touches on their presentation of the comedy hit, "6 Rms; Riv Vu" on Feb. 25-27 and March 4-6 at 8:30 p.m.

The cast includes Alice Anderson, Kim DeLoche, Patricia Duff, Tracey Rowen and Marc Whitmas of Livonia and Lance Arp, John Baird and Shawn O'Neal of Plymouth.

Students working on the stage crew are assistant director and stage manager Cindy Richards of Plymouth; second assistant director and person in charge of costumes and make-up, Buzz Buzzell of Livonia; and publicity, Rene Hyatt and house manager, Steve Doud, both of Livonia. Actor O'Neal is doubling as technical director.

According to director Bob Gregory, "6 Rms; Riv Vu" is all about the delightful happenings of two witty marrieds (not to each other) and refugees of the 1950s who get accidentally locked up in a 1977 New York "rent-controlled" 6-room apartment.

As television's "Happy Days" is nostalgia for today's teens, Bob Randall's "6 Rms; Riv Vu" is happy nostalgia for all of us, Gregory added.

The comedy will be presented in the Liberal Arts Theater. Tickets are $1.25, available at the Campus Bookstore and at the door.

Further information can be obtained by calling 591-6400, ext. 315. The college is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Time to remodel

Beat blahs with changes

The winter blahs have set in and many Western Wayne County residents have reached the limit of "staring at four walls". But now is the time to start thinking of changing those walls through home improvement.

Whether it's brick-style panelling or cedar boards, a dab of paint or colorful wallpaper, some indoor work during the winter works wonders on chasing the winter blahs.

Take, for instance, the basement or attic.

There's scant excuse these days for ignoring basement and attic space that is only a modest remodeling away from fulfilling its potential for pleasant living.

With some thoughtful planning, a few hundred dollars worth of lumber and other materials, and admittedly quite a few weekends, the home handyman can save fully half the contracted cost and do absolute wonders with that idle, unfinished space.

Transformed now into a party room, or perhaps a bedroom with bath, that improvement will pay off in greater fun and comfort for family, admiration of friends and eventually greater value at resale time.

From the start, don't sacrifice quality and elegance. Solid wood paneling brings richness and warmth to a party room more convincingly than most decors, including the now popular supergraphics.

A favorite paneling is western red cedar. Its rich tan-to-brown hues require no finish at all, though often a clear sealer or liquid wax is applied for easier dusting.

One new basement room achieved a lively, inviting air with 6-inch cedar boards, applied to all walls and complemented by hard floor covering in a brick pattern, plus contrasting scatter rugs.

A wet bar enclosed in the same cedar is tucked under the stairs, out of the way for dancing or games. Fortunately, water and disposal lines were only 2 feet away in the wall.

The open stairway of fir became a design element, with carpeted treads and clear finish applied to the wood. All paneling is vertical, except for the diagonal lines adjacent to the bar, and its V-joints lend some order to the random knot pattern.

Joists and decking that support the floor above were left exposed as a beamed ceiling. In this situation, the remodeler who finds this too busy-looking with beams only 16 inches apart can close in the ceiling with paneling.

Basic rules for basement finishing include dry foundation walls and floor, even during heavy rains. Flowing leaks must be stopped, and surface dampness sealed out.

Pieces of lumber, called furring in the walls and sleepers on floors, must separate paneling and flooring from masonry. Treated pieces are preferred.

Soaring heating costs make insulation even in a basement room well worthwhile. To create cavities for blanket or poured insulation, studs can be used, instead of the usual 1-inch furring strips.

Or consider using a brick facade to change the appearance of your living room or to capture a rustic look in a family room.

A new wall covering that looks like aged brick, but actually is sturdy hardboard panelling, now is available for do-it-yourselfers.

New from the Masonite Corp., this distinctive Brick Design paneling duplicates the nostalgic charm of rustic brick. Irregular chipped corners, broken edge effects and an eroded, weathered appearance have been reproduced in detail and texture.

Even hand grouted mortar lines, that separate the staggered "bricks" duplicate the detail of the original.

In combination with the staggered brick effect, the panels incorporate the cut brick edging technique. With cut-brick edging half bricks are spaced in alternating rows along a panel edge. The other half of the brick appears on the abutting panel. This technique permits the panels to be joined together with a much less noticeable break in the brick pattern.

Brick Design paneling is available in three colors to fit most home decorating needs. Red Brick Design combines traditional rich red bricks with a black-mortar effect, while Tan Brick duplicates mellow, lightly colored brick with brown mortaring. White Brick captures the rugged character of painted old brick.

Installation of the hardboard paneling is easy, even for the novice do-it-yourselfer. Sheets of 1/4-inch thick paneling are attached to any smooth wall surface with ordinary woodworking tools. No complicated cutting, seaming or jointing necessary.

Storage clears up 'clutter'

A family room that really functions is an "action alley," where clutter can clog the traffic, if its diverse paraphernalia isn't kept cleared away when not in use.

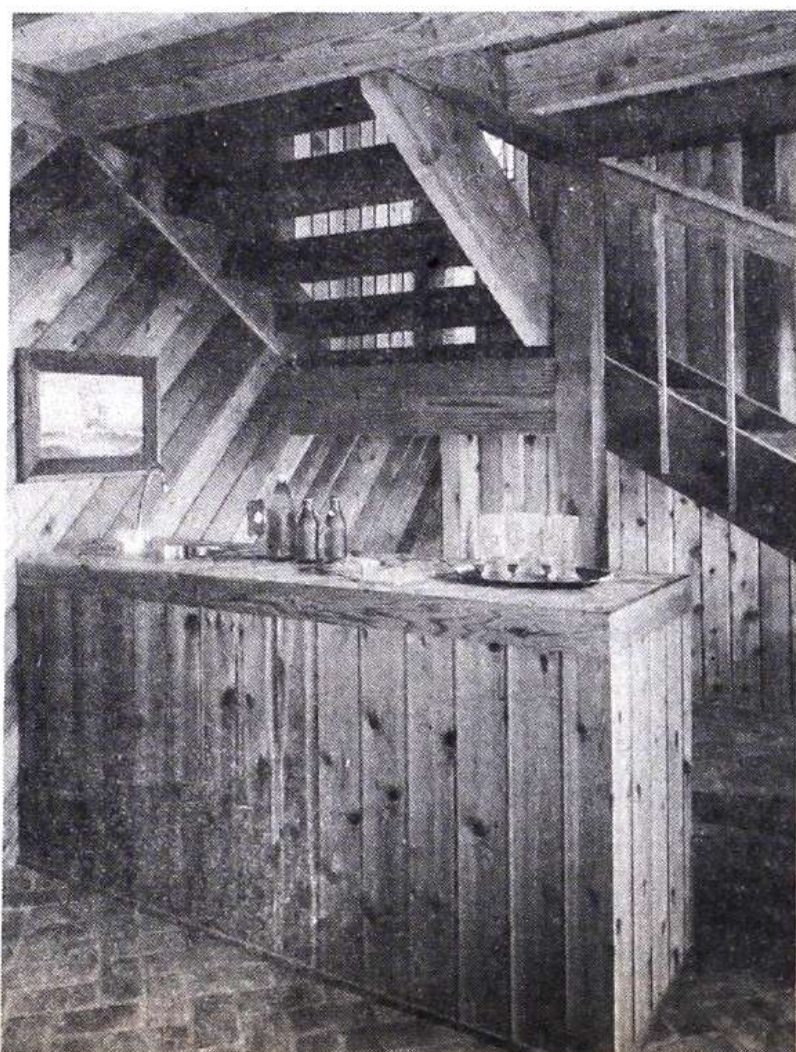

The remedy, of course, is storage, and enough of it. With today's range of family interests, cabinets and shelving must be tailored to each kind of gear and materials. There must be a designated place for each, else it can't be found quickly, and spontaneity is spoiled.

Much space can be wasted, if it isn't allocated by size and shape for the different equipment. Unless storage is planned with utmost care, it may become a wasteful jumble. Detail sketches down to fractions, with even the sequence for installing the pieces, will pay off in time saved when sawdust begins to fly.

Generally, the uprights go in full height and first, horizontals and bracing next. Shelving supports, whether cleats or recessed vertical tracks for adjustable brackets, are easier to install before assembly.

Doors go on last; otherwise they'd be in the handyman's way.

The completed cabinets will dominate the room, so make them a visual asset as well. Go one handsome step further than the typical sheet paneling by facing the cabinets with a solid prestige wood, such as western red cedar.

Do it in cedar

A trim wet bar tucks away neatly beneath an open stairway as part of a lower-level finished project. The room and bar are clad in Select Knotty western red cedar, while a V-joint in smooth 1- by 6-inch boards lends a touch of order to the random knot pattern. Clear sealer heightens the tan to brown hues of the cedar, and is complimented by the stairway, made of Douglas fir.

Outgrowing your home? Consider moving down

If your family is outgrowing your home, don't start thinking about moving out. Instead, think about moving down... to the basement, that is.

Because of its size, the basement often is the ideal location for a "new addition", in this case a family room that has something for everyone—television, dining and study areas, refreshment bar, sports center and plenty of storage space.

An attractive, comfortable and functional room that fulfills a variety of family needs and requirements was fashioned from a 22- by 31-foot basement area. Do-it-yourself materials were used transforming the basement into well-defined smaller areas for specialized activities.

When the project began, typical concrete floors, cement block walls steel posts, exposed pipes, electric lines and ducts were very much in evidence. What finally emerged was a home within a home—a large multi-purpose room that radiates warmth and charm.

Each area was planned for privacy. The television viewing area, for example, was separated from the table tennis area. Entertainment, hobby and study areas were delineated, and plenty of storage provided.

Walls throughout the family room were covered with Masonite brand driftwood paneling, a light colored wall covering with dark, deep dimensional graining. The durable prefinished hardboard paneling is easy to install and cleans easily with a damp cloth.

The paneling was applied to furring strips with adhesive. Nailing also can be used. A vapor barrier was installed over the cement blocks, and the furring strips were applied with concrete nails.

The Masonite brand paneling was used effectively to box in one steel post and to build a closet and storage unit around another. Matching moldings were used to provide the finishing to the job.

A suspended ceiling hid duct work, plumbing and electrical wiring, and incorporated in the tile installation was recessed fluorescent lighting.

The vinyl flooring needed only glue along the edges for a professionally installed look.

Every family rooms needs a "refreshment center" and this basement was no exception. A compact little galley, equipped for maximum entertaining efficiency, held everything, but a full-sized range. The bar, which is fitted with a plastic laminate surface, was ideal for serving a buffet.

For other forms of entertainment, an open area at one end of the basement accommodated a standard-sized fold-up table tennis table that also can double as a playing surface for other games.

Near it was a storage wall lined with peg-board brand paneling to hold all kinds of sports and game equipment.

Even more can be done with a basement. All it takes is a plan, some tools and some of your time.

Glenn '5' slips, 54-50

Westlanders cling to first place in Northwest

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor
Westland John Glenn's grip on first place in the Northwest

Suburban Conference basketball league loosened Friday as Thurston jolted the league-leading Rockets 54-50 in the first game of the second round of action.

The loss snapped a four-game Glenn winning streak and it now stands only one game in first ahead of North Farmington. North missed an opportunity to move into a two-way tie atop of the standings when it lost to a charging Livonia Franklin quintet.

"We can't afford another loss," warned Glenn coach Gordie Davis whose Rockets head for North Farmington Friday night. "We have to play three on the road and it's going to be tough."

Davis attributed his team's loss to Thurston "to our ineptness at the free throw line." The Westlanders made two of 10 fouls. They also blew a 10 point, 16-6 first period lead as Thurston outscored their visitors 23-7 in the second eight minutes of the game.

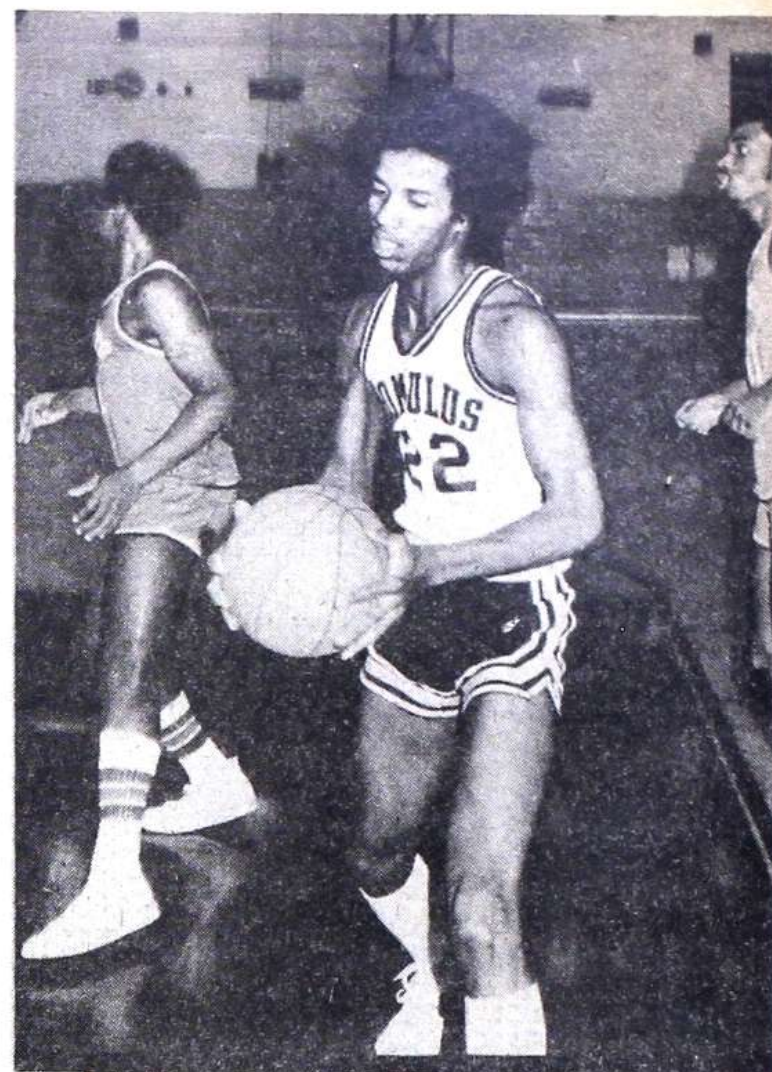

Trailing 29-23 at the half, Glenn managed to come back in the third period to outscore their rivals 17-13 thanks to Pat McBride and Dan Diadiun who sparked the rally.

Clutch free throw shooting by Thurston's Brian Mulvihill, though, sealed the victory — their first in the league — M for the Redford quintet.

"We went to the foul line three times in the fourth period and didn't come away with anything," Davis added.

Mulvihill led all scorers with 18 points while teammates Mike Nagle and Dave Beebe added 14 and 11, respectively.

Diadiun's 12 points stood up as Glenn's high. Tom Jurewicz and McBride split 22 points between them.

Not their night

The grim face of Romulus' senior guard Wendell Buckley (22) tells the story. The Eagles just couldn't muster enough scoring power against a visiting Detroit Osborn quintet which handed their hosts a 66-55 setback.

With Glenn's sudden demise at Thurston and Livonia Franklin's surprisingly easy 72-55 over what is presumed a tough North Farmington team, a team with a 5-3 record could just slip to the top.

"We're going to try to finish with that record (5-3)," Visser said. (The Patriots are 2-3 presently). "The race isn't over yet and like I said before, it was a matter of time that we'd be ready. Friday night our boys showed that they haven't given up."

The hot-shooting Franklin quintet sank six of their 10 shots in the first period and leaped to an 18-10 lead against North, then the Livonians

Death interrupts a career

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

This is one kind of column that sports editors would prefer not to write.

But, where there is life it inevitably follows there will be death. And death shocked this community last week by claiming the life of 19-year-old Greg Emery, a versatile athlete who led Garden City East in basketball, football and baseball.

Emery, who made our All-Area teams in basketball and baseball two years ago, was fatally injured early last Wednesday morning when his panel truck crashed into another vehicle on the icy Ford Freeway near the Lodge freeway near Roseville.

His death brough a hish to the Northwest Suburban Conference where the young lad was a prominent figure for more than three years.

Greg's unique athletic ability made him a superior athlete and his peers respected him on and off the court, the gridiron and baseball diamond.

"Greg had the kindest personality, was the easiest youngster to coach that has every been on any of my teams," said Billy Joe Young, who heads East's baseball and basketball teams. "We still can't believe that he is gone."

Emery was only one of two East players to ever score 1,000 or more points in basketball. He finished his career with 1,061, second only to former all-stater Dave Jackson's output.

In 1975, the 6-3½, 190 pound Emery, who threw and batted left handed, hit .321 and posted a 6-1 won-lost pitching record in leading the Panthers to their first Northwest Suburban Conference baseball championship.

In football, Coach Gary Humphrey utilized the sturdy young athlete as an end both on defense as well as offense.

"There wasn't anyone who didn't like Greg Emery," Coach Young added. "His personality was such that he had a tremendous magnetism towards people. Everything was fun for him."

Ironically, Greg was killed making a delivery to a store approximately a half-mile from the house in which his father had lived as a high school baseball star.

Greg father, Joe, was signed by the Detroit Tigers back in the early 1950s and played in the Triple A, Syracuse and International League before ending his career.

One will never know now just how good athletically Greg Emery would have been in college if death didn't intercept him on that freeway in this coldest of winters, but he has left an indelible mark on the local sports scene.

And life will and must go on.

At Romulus, the student body and administration are preparing to honor one of its greats, Johnny Long, a former all-stater cager who is being groomed as an All-American at the University of Detroit.

Friday night is "Johnny Long Nite" at Romulus and the sharpshooting forward will be presented a plaque during halftime ceremonies of the Romulus-Detroit Northwestern basketball game.

"Johnny Long is one of the finest basketball players ever to graduate from this high school," said Jesse Meriweather, the Eagles' head cage coach. "And, by setting aside a night for him we're trying to pay tribute to someone who has done so much for this school."

"It shows that young people can succeed through hard work and continuous practice," Meriweather added.

Long, who is the Titans' leading scorer — he's averaging 21 ppg., has led his team to a 17-1 over-all record. The 6-5 junior is flanked by another former Romulus standout, 6-9 senior Ron Bostick.

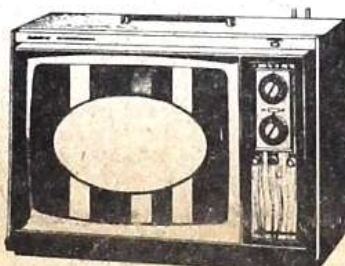

Since U-of-D isn't scheduled to play until Saturday, Meriweather said that there is a possibility that Titan Coach Tony Vitale also will accompany Long to Romulus.

Maybe Vitale will let Long put on his old Eagle uniform to play against Northwestern?

Belleville wins its 1st wrestling title

Wayne, Glenn repeat as league champs

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Belleville High joined the ranks of the area high school wrestling powers on Saturday as Coach Gerald Malecek's grapplers captured the Suburban 8 Conference championships.

Unbeaten in dual meet competition, Malecek's Tigers became the first Belleville team ever to win a Suburban 8 team title.

"It was pretty exciting to win it," said Malecek who is completing his fifth season as head coach. "The kids were really up for the conference meet and they came through with flying colors."

Belleville edged Dearborn 145-143 to win the conference meet but it had the over-all championship sewed up because Dearborn had sustained three prior league losses.

Trenton finished third with 109 points, followed by Plymouth Salem (105), Allen Park (84), Edsel Ford (74), Livonia Bentley (45½), and Redford Union (39).

Belleville also had two individual champs in 119-pounder Mark Ford who defeated Edsel's Matt Taylor in the finals 11-4. Belleville's 145-pounder, Stan Johnson, earned a gold medal when he outlasted Edsel's Eric Linton 2-0 in an overtime bout.

Belleville placed six of its wrestlers in the finals with silver medals going to Scott Harsch (112), Carl Winekoff (134), Tom Memering (158), and Bob Cook (191). Belleville finished third with Joe Justin (105), Brent Verrot (138) and Rick Briggs (178) while Mike Mlsna (126) was fourth.

Meanwhile, John Glenn, getting some unexpected help from North Farmington, won its 10th Northwest title in 12 years.

Glenn had lost to Thurston in the dual meet phase of the season and when North Farmington placed second behind Glenn, it provided the Westlanders the cushion to sit upon the conference throne by themselves.

Glenn captured six first places, six seconds and placed third in the remaining weight class.

"We're really happy about winning this title," said Glenn Coach Bob Lusk. "We've won the title 10 out of the 12 years, eight of those were outright and we shared the title twice."

Duane Foss (119), Nick Paciocco (126), Mike Collins (138), Rick Eisiminger (145), Jeff Doyle (165) and Jerome Robinson (heavyweight) were Glenn's individual gold medalists.

Wayne Memorial, which has won the last three Great Lakes 8 Conference titles, was forced to hand over a share of the league championship this year to Monroe.

Monroe beat Wayne in dual meet competition, however, Coach Don Haney's grapplers came back to win the league meet with 197½ points and seven out of a possible 13 first places.

That forced a co-championship upon the league.

Bo Wanshon (122) and Doug Ford (194) were runners-up with Bob Lusk (158) finished third and heavyweight Kevin Wilson finished fourth.

A holdover from horse and buggy days, leaf springs are often used in heavy-duty rear suspensions. Several layers of spring steel, clipped together to form a single unit, support great axle weight. A hinged shackle at one end permits the springs to flex with axle movement while a shock absorber dampens the oscillations between the center of the spring and the frame. Two rods of spring steel, called torsion bars, are used as an alternative to coil springs in the front suspensions of some cars.

Dolphins breeze to victory

Lincoln Park next for Wayne

Seventeen different swimmers captured at least one individual-event first-place ribbon Friday, and seven more were members of victorious relay teams as the Wayne Recreation Dolphins Swim Club claimed a 250-231 win over Crestwood.

It was the fifth straight win without a loss for the Dolphins, who lead the Suburban Winter Conference. Wayne will play host to Lincoln Park April 19 at Wayne High School in its quest for a conference dual-meet sweep.

Two members of the Wayne 12-under category, unquestionably the team's strongest age group, paced the victory with two individual victories each.

Kurt (Korky) Whitehead, a seventh-grader from Adams Junior High and one leader of the boys' 12-under group, won the 50-yard butterfly in 32.6 seconds, followed closely by teammates Doug White and Mike Egan.

Whitehead then turned in a Dolphin record time of one minute, 13.8 seconds in the 100-yard individual Medley to lead Todd Melanshek and Kevin Egan in another one-two-three Dolphin sweep. Whitehead also teamed with Tim Butler, Mike Chames and Mike Goyette in an all-ages medley relay team which finished second.

Meanwhile, 11-year-old Mary

Batterson, a sixth-grader from Monroe Elementary School, led the girls' 12-under group with two individual wins in the 50-yard butterfly and the 100-yard Individual Medley, along with teaming with sister Cathy Batterson, Doug White and Todd Melanshek for a win in the 200-yard freestyle relay.

Other members for the strong 12-under category who gained first-place ribbons were Randy Ferguson, 50-yard backstroke; Cathy Batterson, 50-yard backstroke; Mike Egan, 50-yard breaststroke, and Melanshek, 50-yard freestyle. Doug White and Ferguson cosely followed Melanshek in the freestyle for another Dolphin sweep.

Mike Greuber also amassed two first-place ribbons in the 10-under and 50-yard freestyle and 50-yard breaststroke, while Teri Discher gained firsts in the 50-yard butterfly and 100-yard Individual Medley.

Other first-place winners of individual events included Mary Beth Henson, Jenny Beckton, Lorraine Shaffer, Beth Martel, Keith Head, Kris Balwinski, Gretchen Batterson, Thelma Kew and Kelly Batterson.

In addition Diane Brown, Kris Whitehead, Julie Johnston and Miss Beckton teamed for a triumph in the all-ages medley relay, while Andy Balwinski, Steve Matheny, Cathy

White and Gretchen Batterson gained freestyle relay laurels.

Eight times in the 44 individual events the Dolphins finished 1-2-3, and five times placed three swimmers in the first four places.

Wait for me

Romulus Larry Horne (50) watches as the ball jet past him and Osborn's high-scoring Rich Shellman (23) in Friday's nonleague confrontation.

The Detroiters' padded their overall record to 4-8 on the season with a 66-55 victory. Shellman scored 18 points.

Belleville '5' gets even with Trenton

With the help of a transfer student from Willow Run, Belleville evened up its score with Trenton in the Suburban 8 Basketball Conference. Marion Smith, a 6-1 senior, pumped in 17 points to spark Belleville to a 59-56 victory over the Trojans who won the first game between the two rivals by an identical score.

Smith, who exchanged his Willow Run Flyer jersey when he transferred out of the school district to Belleville, has been a welcomed addition to Coach Tom Niemi's lineup.

"He's been doing a super job for us," Niemi said of this clutch performer. "It's just too bad we can't keep him around for a couple of more years."

Trenton, struggling despite a front line which includes 6-7 Brian Anteau, 6-8 Ray Bloch, and 6-5 Mark Welch, couldn't match the Tiger speed.

Belleville edged its way to a 11-8 first period lead and hung on 28-22 at halftime. However, Trenton caught Belleville midway in the third period and it was a nip-and-tuck affair until Belleville's Rob Laney hit on a free throw that tied the game at 56-all with 50 seconds left.

Trenton called a time out and when play resumed the Trojans turned the ball over via a stolen pass to Belleville's Kevin Barnes who gave the Tigers the lead 58-56 with a jumper.

Trenton's counter-attack failed and the Trojans intentionally fouled

Barnes in order to get the ball back. Barnes sank of the two free throws and the Tigers let their rivals dribble the length of the court to make the final basket.

Belleville made 24 of its 68 attempted shots from the field and hit on 11 of 18 from the foul line. Trenton capitalized on 12 of 19 free throws and 22 of 61 from the field. Smith's 17 points stood up as Belleville's high. It also was good for a share of individual scoring honors for the game. Bloch also sank 17. Kelvin Patterson hit 12 points, the only other Belleville cager in two figures.

The victory evened up Belleville's league record to 4-4. They're 7-7 over-all.

The team to catch in the league is Plymouth Salem, which has amassed a perfect 8-0 record.

Niemi and the Tigers will get a second look at Edsel Ford, however, this time they'll be travelling to the Dearborn-based high school's gym on Friday.

Wayne scares Taylor with 40-37 victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Though they are out of the Great Lakes 8 Conference title race, it doesn't necessarily follow that Coach Bill Hawley's Zebras are going to let teams step on them.

Hawley and Wayne gave title hopeful Taylor Center a scare before falling to the league-leader 40-37.

A defensive battle to the end, each team had to earn their points.

"It was the best man-to-man defense we played all year," Hawley said. "I'm extremely proud at the way our kids played tonight."

Taylor built up a 12 point lead early in the first half after taking an 12-8 advantage in the first period and a 25-17 margin at halftime.

With 2:01 left in the ball game, Taylor remained ahead 37-27 when Mike Singleton, Pat Bledsoe and Mike Plungis led a Wayne comeback.

Tyrone Jordan, one of the finest shooters in the league, supplied

Taylor with 12 points while Mike Shaskalis added 11. None of the Wayne players reached double figures. However, Bill Crews had nine points before he was sidelined in the third period after spraining his ankle grabbing a rebound.

Earlier in the week Wayne picked up its fourth league victory at the expense of Monroe 84-67. The Zebras are now 4-5 in the conference, good for fifth place.

Tim Couch led all scorers with 28 points and extended his consecutive foul shooting streak to 32 in a row with a perfect 8 for 8 against Monroe. He didn't go to the line against Taylor.

"We're certain that this is a league record," said Hawley, "but whether this is an area record we're not so sure. I think Niles (Dave Niles of Garden City West) had a longer streak a year ago."

Wayne leaped to a 19-12 lead over Monroe which kept pace until the fourth period when Couch and Bledsoe opened up with a barrage of baskets. Couch, who hit on seven of his 10 shots in the first period, added eight points in the last eight minutes while Bledsoe collected seven.

Crews had 15 points, 11 in the second half, while Bledsoe finished with 13, the first time he has hit in two figures this season.

Cherry Hill tankers capture Garden City East Invitational

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

The anticipated showdown between Cherry Hill and Clarenceville for the 15th annual Garden City East Invitational swim title didn't materialize as Coach Jerry Pawloski's Spartans coasted to an easy victory.

Cherry Hill garnered 354 team points, broke three pool and meet records enroute to their third consecutive East championship.

"The kids were really up for this meet," Pawloski said. "They swam well."

Cherry Hill took eight first places, two each by Rick Kogelschatz and Mark Cotter. Kogelschatz turned in a 23 seconds efforts in winning the 50-yard freestyle, then set a record for the 100-yard butterfly.

Rick's time, 54.1 in the finals, was actually slower than the one he carded in the preliminary (54.0).

Cotter set the pace in the 200-yard individual medley as he churned a 2:09.2 to lead teammate Dave Koslosky to the wire. Koslosky's second place time was a 2:14.3.

Cotter returned to the pool for the 100-yard breaststroke and won his gold in a 1:08.8 performance.

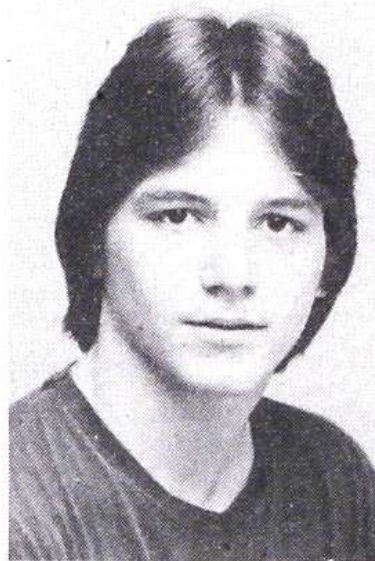

Both Cherry Hill relay teams set new pool and meet highs. The foursome of Scott Lillie, Cotter, Kogelschatz and Koslosky finished the 200-yard medley relay in 1:45.5, while the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Randy Wehrmeister, Eric Wohlfeil, Lillie and Gary Schuler was clocked in 3:29.0.

John Glenn was represented in the winner's circle by diver Chris Freeborn who established himself as the one to beat at the Western Wayne Invitational when he compiled 417.40 points. Teammate Ed Marshall finished third with 392.45 points.

Clarenceville's Mike Wassman also had an excellent day as he picked up two golds, winning the 200-yard freestyle in a record-shattering 1:51.7 and also claiming the 500-yard freestyle with a 5:14.6, also a new high for East's pool and meet.

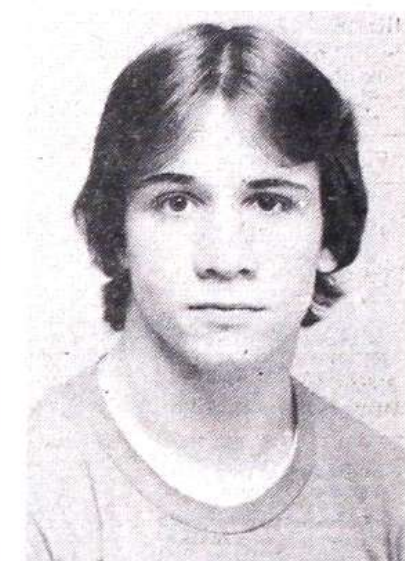

Cherry Hill outdistanced Clarenceville for the team title 354-191. The two were followed by Garden City East 187, John Glenn 168, Annapolis 91, and Garden City East 89.

increased the margin to 34-20 at halftime and, for all purposes, the game was over by the end of three-periods when the Patriots had a 61-34 advantage.

"By far, this was our best game of the season," Visser pointed out. "There was no question that we could play defense, now that the offense is coming around, we're going to make a run for it."

John Zannis and Dennis Smith sank six points each in that opening period to ignite the Patriots. Zannis finished with 19 points, the game high, and was joined by Ken Scarpace, with 16, and Smith, with 14, in the double figure scoring column.

Earlier in the week Franklin bowed to highly-touted Dearborn quintet 49-37 in one of the lowest scoring games of the season. Franklin went ahead 6-5 after the first period and stayed out in front 20-19 at halftime.

However, Dearborn scored the first basket of the third period to take the lead for good. The Patriots were up 34-25 at the end of the third period.

"They (Dearborn) wanted to sit back in their zone," Visser said in explaining the low-scoring game. "And, since we had the lead we let them do so. But when they took the lead early in the third period, it changed the complexion of the game."

Franklin had a cold night from the free throw line where it cashed in on 15 of 30 opportunities as compared to Dearborn's 13 of 20 effort.

Freestyle relay team gives Wayne win over Wyandotte

Michelle Matheny, Karen Van Curren, Elena Drake, Dawn Smith and Cathy White.

Wayne Memorial has never won the Great Lakes 8 Conference swimming championship.

But Coach Jim McPartlin and his Zebras figure it's time to end the four-year drought. They proved it by edging Wyandotte, the defending league champ, 89-83, last Thursday.

"We've beaten the tough ones," McPartlin said, "and we're definitely the ones to beat at the league meet."

The Great Lakes Conference meet will be held March 3-4 at Taylor Truman. Wayne is presently riding the crest of a four-meet winning streak in the league.

The outcome of the Wayne-Wyandotte meet went right down to the proverbial wire — the 400-yard freestyle relay — and McPartlin used his trump — Rick Matheny, Joe Miles, Tom Brown and Mike Kuhn to pull it out.

The foursome broke the Wayne school record, beating their counterparts from Wyandotte by more than four-tenths of a second to pick up the decisive event.

"Up to that point the meet was tied at 79-all," McPartlin related. "It was up to the freestyle relay team and the boys got the job done."

Wayne captured six out of the possible 11 first places with Kuhn winning two of the six. The Wayne senior powered his way to a 1:52.8, beating Wyandotte's Pete Okonkowski by one-tenth of a second to stash the 200-yard freestyle event in the Zebra column.

Mike had an easier time of it though in the 100-yard freestyle where he won with a 51.5. Rival Jim Eastman turned in a 52.1.

Wayne will return to the pool Thursday night at 7 p.m. from their next conference duel and on hand will be a gallery packed with parents. It's the annual Parents' Night Meet."

Meet results: Wayne Memorial 89, Wyandotte 83

METRO DETROIT CONSUMER FOOD COUNCIL™

"We rated sirloin steaks from all five supermarket chains on color, fat trimming, texture and marbling, overall appearance and lowest price. Here are the results."

Actual test results are available by writing to Consumer Food Council, in care of Research One, 21711 W. 10 Mile Rd.

CHATHAM BEATS COMPETITION IN TEST OF STEAK QUALITY AND VALUE.

(Winner in 3 categories, tied in 1, second in 1.)

Chatham tied for first place in meat appearance (both sides.)

Chatham placed first for texture and marbling.

Chatham beat three other Chains for best meat color.

Chatham's average prices were the lowest overall of the five major chains.

Chatham placed first overall on trimming of excess fat.

All 12 Consumer Food Council members bought a sirloin steak at each of Detroit's five major chains for a total of 60 steaks. They rated their purchases on a scale of 1 to 10. The results were averaged, and Chatham steaks came out best overall for quality and value.

If you would like to be a Council member, write: Metro Detroit Consumer Food Council, in care of Research One, 21711 W. 10 Mile Rd. Southfield, Mich. 48075

BUDGET SAVERS

1. Get the midweek habit of shopping your newspaper's ad for all it's worth, for this is one of the greatest time and moneysavers. Find out what meats, fresh produce, frozen foods, and staples are on special, then work them into your weekend meals.
2. Before you start out, plan your menus completely enough to guide you in making up a shopping list. Jot down items by departments to save steps and avoid forgetting anything. And remember to take your list with you.
3. Take time to read labels and compare brands, grades, and sizes, for here are the keys to many savings.
4. Learn to recognize a "feature special" and take advantage of it. If it's an item you use often, or it keeps well and you have storage space, it is a good food investment.
5. Consider ready-to-heat foods, for some cost less than those made at home.
6. Buy according to your storage space. Family-size bags of frozen foods are economical but do not hold well in the ice-cube compartment of a refrigerator.
7. Bear in mind how much your family will eat. A small can is often the best choice for a twosome, for it gives mealtime variety and eliminates leftovers. To serve fresh fruits and vegetables at their peak in flavor, buy only for two or three days' meals at a time.
8. Large cuts of meat on special mean a bargain in price per pound - as well as meat for several meals.
